Explosions Take 2 More Lives In Bucyrus

DEATHS BOOST TOLL TO 3 FOR 3-DAY PERIOD

Father of 4 Fatally Burned Attempting to Start Fire With Kerosene.

WIFE TAKEN TO HOSPITAL

Woman, 79, Dies After Gas Explodes, Starts Fire at Daughter's Home.

BUCYRUS — Explosions claimed two more lives in Bucyrus over the week-end, bringing to three the number of persons to meet death in that manner in the past three days.

The newest victim was Gerald Raymond, 30, of nearby Nevada, who died in City hospital at 4:15 a. m. today. He was burned fatally Sunday evening when he attempted to light a fire with kerosene. An ensuing fire destroyed the home.

Carries Sons to Safety.

Raymond's wife, Mary, 24, suffered severe burns on her hands as she attempted to beat out the flames that enveloped her husband. She is also in the hospital. Their four sons, who were in another part of the house, escaped injury. Their mother carried them to safety.

Only a little more than 12 hours before Raymond died, Mrs. Lucy Minerva Moore, 79, succumbed in the hospital from burns suffered in a gas explosion at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Edward Murphy, Galena street, with whom she lived.

Mrs. Moore was preparing breakfast Sunday morning at the time of the explosion. Her daughter and her husband were in an upstairs room. The blast shattered every room in the house and started a fire that did damage estimated at $700. Fire Chief William Mader reported that the explosion was due to a defective fixture.

Kin Suffers Burns.

Murphy rushed to the kitchen and took his mother-in-law to the hospital after extinguishing the blaze which ignited her dress. He suffered severe burns on his hands.

Jean Nelson, 13, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Clyde Nelson, Bucyrus, was the first explosion victim. She died in the hospital Saturday of burns suffered when a can of kerosene exploded while she was attempting to start a fire in a coal heater Friday. The home was damaged to the extent of $1,000 by the explosion and fire.

Raymond, an employe of the Wyandot Clay company, is survived by his wife and four sons,

Norway, Britain In Mourning as Queen Maud Dies

LONDON —(AP)— Norway and Britain today mourned the passing of Norway's English-born Queen Maud, who died in a London nursing home early Sunday of a heart attack four days after an abdominal operation.

The queen was 68 years old.

Aunt of King George VI of Great Britain and last child of Edward VII, her death came so suddenly that only a nurse was at her bedside.

King Haakon of Norway was at Buckingham palace where he has been staying since the queen's illness brought him hurrying from Oslo.

Crown Prince Olaf, the queen's only child, left Norway to join his father in London.

The queen's body is to lie in state tomorrow in the chapel of Marlborough house and Wednesday will be placed aboard a British battleship to be escorted by four destroyers to Norway.

Either the Duke of Kent or the Duke of Gloucester is expected to represent King George at funeral services in Oslo.

Steals Car But Baby Sleeps On

YONKERS, N. Y. — (AP) — A youth stole a car here without realizing that 18-month-old Marguerite Oliver, daughter of the owner, was dozing in a basket in the rear of the vehicle.

In his flight the thief crashed into a truck, wrecking the car so badly he left it and fled on foot.

When the worried parents arrived at the scene, a policeman led them silently to the smashed car.

"Sh-h-h-," he warned, pointing at the basket.

The baby was still asleep.

PAN-AMERICAN ENVOYS TO MAP CODE OF PEACE

Writer Reviews Past Work of Conference, Relations of Republics Involved.

(EDITOR'S NOTE: Secretary Hull, Alfred M. Landon, and other United States delegates will sail Friday for the Pan-American conference at Lima, Peru. Andrue Berding, Associated Press staff writer who will go with the delegation to report its activities, in the following story reviews relations of the American republics.)

By ANDRUE BERDING

WASHINGTON — (AP) — Since the totalitarian states of Europe and Asia are looking to Latin America as their ripest field for economic expansion, the Pan-American conference next month at Lima, Peru, may write one of the most important chapters in the history of the western hemisphere.

Before it will be proposals for a League of American nations, for an inter-American code of peace, for an American court of international justice, for a declaration refusing recognition of conquered territory, and the like.

Started In 1889.

It was Secretary Hull's remote predecessor, Secretary of State James G. Blaine, who started the Pan-American movement with a conference here in 1889, following the sending of invitations by Secretary of State Bayard in 1888.

What Blaine had in mind, primarily, was an extension of United States exports in Latin America, in view of the fact that in 1889 the United States imported from the American Republics $142,000,000 more in goods than she exported to them.

After speeches extolling and proposing friendship, peace, arbitration and promotion of the welfare of the Pan-American States, Secretary Blaine brought forth his main purpose—a Pan-American customs union. It failed, largely through the opposition of

HIT BY STRIKE

Chicago Stockyards Idle as 500 Walk Off Jobs.

CHICAGO —(UP)— The largest stockyard in the world was paralyzed today by a strike of 500 stock handlers.

The strikers, employed by the Union Stock Yards and Transit company which receives cattle, sheep and hogs and keeps them until they are sold to packers, walked out at the opening of the day's trading. The company employes about 700 handlers.

Traders said that three hours after the scheduled opening of the market there were no transactions, although 200 workers affiliated with the American Federation of Labor still were on the job. It was reported that a handler's union affiliated with the AFL had voted against the strike.

BANNER YEAR

State Orders More Hunting Permits; 653,000 Gone.

COLUMBUS—(AP)—The state division of conservation said today that an unprecedented demand for hunting licenses had exhausted its supply and an extra 26,000 had been ordered.

A total of 653,000 permits were sent out previously, the department said, but several counties reported their supply gone and were calling for more. Last year 507,000 licenses were sold.

'Dust Bowl' Alumni Give Thanks

Last year the government "transplanted" about 90 farm families from the mid-west dust bowl to more fertile land in Colorado. This year, those farmers had bountiful crops, for the first time since the dust storms began. So they held a thanksgiving dinner at harvest time. The pictures tell how bountiful it was.

FROM THIS LAND, its top soil ripped away by winds, came the transplanted farmers of the project. Two of them are shown on a sand dune, just before they left for their new homes farther to the west.

AT HARVEST TIME on their new lands, whole families pitched in. These are H. M. Rants' children. His crops died every year after 1930 until he came to Grand Junction. "Even if I never made a dollar," says Rants, "I wouldn't swap back for any consideration. At least my children don't have to breathe dust."

"LET US GIVE THANKS . . ." and members of 90 families paused to express through their minister (foreground) gratitude for the "good soil and plenty of water" which is theirs on this western Colorado resettlement project. Their prayer ended, these pioneers from the dust bowl turned to tables loaded with food.

WASHINGTON— (UP) —A conference of 200 attorneys and jurists decided today to ask President Roosevelt and Secretary Hull to lift the arms embargo against the Spanish government.

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn.—(AP)—President Roosevelt arrived here at 9 a. m., today for a motor tour of Chickamauga TVA dam and Civil war battlefields.

Before starting on their four-hour sight seeing drive, the president and Mrs. Roosevelt were welcomed to Chattanooga by a group of state Democratic leaders, including Gov. Gordon Browning, Governor-Elect Prentice Cooper, Sen. Kenneth D. McKellar and Senator-Elect Tom Stewart.

Gov. E. D. Rivers of Georgia also was in the depot party.

TACKLE CITY SEWER WOES

Councilmen, Health Board and Engineers Meet Tomorrow to Discuss Problem.

Mansfield's antiquated sewer system will come in for serious study and consideration at a meeting of city officials tomorrow night called by Mayor Claude M. Hunter.

Hunter said that he had asked the city board of health, council's finance and sewer committees and city engineers to be present at a meeting in his office at 7:30 p. m. Tuesday.

"The purpose of the meeting will be to analyze and discuss both the storm and sanitary sewer systems which are badly in need of extensive improvements," Hunter said.

He pointed out that both systems have been a constant source of worry to the present administration as well as previous administrations because of the numerous damage claims which have been filed with council due to sewers backing up into property owners' cellars.

The mayor said that council's finance committee had been asked to the meeting so it will be informed just what consideration should be given to improvements in the sewer system before the annual appropriations bill is drafted early next year.

Action by the mayor follows a recommendation made by the board of health several months ago when it asked council to consider a city-wide sewer survey as the first step towards improving the system.

Sent to Reformatory 3 Hours After He Gives Up as Forger

Prodded by his conscience and a constant fear of the law, Russell McCammon, 23, of Ashland, sought by Richland county and Akron authorities since last July, gave himself up at the county jail this morning and three hous later was sentenced to one to 15 years in the Mansfield roformatory for forgery.

"Well, here I am," McCammon announced bluntly as he walked into the sheriff's office at the jail at 8:30 a. m. today.

Deputy Sheriff Glenn Freeman, who was on duty, did not recognize the youth and had to search through the records to learn why the county wanted McCammon.

"I came back from New Jersey about a week ago and walked past the jail here three times before I got enough courage to come in. But now that I'm here, I want the judge to give me what I deserve without wasting any time," McCammon said.

He was wanted on a secret indictment returned by the county grand jury in August which accused him of forging checks totaling more than $200 in Mansfield, Shelby and other towns in Richalnd and Ashland counties.

Records showed he also was wanted in Akron for theft, Harold T. Lutz, assistant county prosecutor, said.

Common pleas Judge C. H. Huston, usually lenient with prisoners who give themselves up, said McCammon's record forced him to sentence the youth to the reformatory.

EMPIRE WORKS AT RATE ABOVE U. S. AVERAGE

Production at 65 Per Cent of Capacity, Increase Over Last Week, Says Hill.

NATIONAL AVERAGE 63

Automobile Orders Continue to Set Pace; Other Fields to React Soon, Belief.

Steel operations in Mansfield stood at 65 per cent of capacity, the year's best level, James M. Hill, president of the Empire Sheet and Tin Plate company announced today.

The figures reported by Hill puts the production level of the Empire plant two per cent above rate for the nation as reported in this week's issue of the magazine Steel, which set the national average at 63.

The present peak production level at Empire showed an increase of approximately 1.5 above last week and 25 points below the capacity level which last year stood at 90 per cent, Hill said.

Big Ingot Output.

He pointed out however, that November orders, which were largely due to automobile purchasing and a burst of strength in the scrap market, will probably fall below last month's buying because of the heavy previous orders for in sheets and strips.

Hill said that the magazine's report that a reduction of backlogs of flat rolled steel will be instrumental in giving November ingot output the largest percentage gain over October in history, would hold true at the Empire plant.

Employment at the Empire also stood at a peak figure for the year with approximately 1,000 workers engaged in a 40-hour a week basis.

Steel reported that the sharp gain in automotive operations is not reflected in other steel consuming industries, but the resultant retail sales increase should aid those industries.

Car Production Up.

It said automobile production last week reached 96,735 highest in 15 months, and a production of nearly 1,000,000 for the fourth quarter was indicated.

However, the bulk of Empire's orders are from automobile plants, and the failure of orders from other industries to keep pace with the automobile orders has failed to have any adverse effects on the Mansfield plant. Lack of railroad buying has kept some steel plants, specializing in heavy rolled products, from showing increases in operations, but Empire does not make these products.

NEW STAY SEEN

Davey to Leave Mrs. Hahn Live Over Christmas, Belief.

COLUMBUS—(INS)—On a clemency hearing after the Thanksgiving holiday attorneys for Anna Marie Hahn today based their hope that the blond Cincinnatian may yet escape the electric chair.

Her pleas for a new trial turned down by the highest courts, Mrs. Hahn, now 32, will become the first woman to die in Ohio's electric chair unless Gov. Martin L. Davey intervenes. She is under sentence to die on Dec. 7 for the "poison for profit" murder of an aged friend, Jacob Wagner.

In some quarters the belief prevails that Davey will at least delay the execution until after Christmas, conforming with a precedent set last year. But the governor has said he will not leave clemency for Mrs. Hahn for final determination by his successor, Gov.-elect John W. Bricker, who takes office next Jan. 9.

WOMAN SLAIN

Killers Sought to Fake Auto Accident, Police Believe.

CHICAGO — (UP) — Police attempted today to identify and establish the cause of death of an attractive young woman whose body, all marks of identification gone, was found Sunday under the glare of a street lamp on a lonely thoroughfare. She was of medium height, a brunet, and about 25.

Coroner's physicians said she had not been killed by an automobile and believed her body had been placed in the street to simulate a hit-run accident.

LIQUOR APLENTY

U. S. Stocks Total 471,159,539 Gallons, Treasury Says.

WASHINGTON — (AP) — The treasury announced today that the nation's stocks of legal liquor are the highest in history.

Reporting on the fiscal year ended June 30, the treasury said 97 per cent of last year's 99,499,016-gallon whisky production was put in storage, boosting stocks of the liquor to 471,159,539 gallons.

60,000 IN JAIL OR PRISON CAMPS AS DRIVE WANES

Berlin Hears Some Jews Permitted to Continue Export Business So Nation Won't Lose Contacts Abroad; New Press Attacks Hit Roosevelt.

(By Associated Press)

BERLIN—The first dim signs of a slackening in the anti-Jewish drive appeared today, after 11 days in which even the homes of foreigners were reported searched for Jews.

The let-down did not lessen general despair or what was for many Jews an acute problem—how to live from day to day. They were unable to draw upon bank reserves to replenish ready cash funds because the head of the house, who made the deposits, was under arrest.

Nevertheless, there was at least a momentary end to the wholesale arrests which Jews estimate sent 60,000 of their men to jail and concentration camps.

A usually good authority said some Jews would be permitted to continue their export businesses, because their contacts abroad were too valuable to abandon in the face of decreasing foreign orders for German goods.

Authorization to resume publication of announcements for the Jewish community, but without advertisements or news, was given the newspaper Judische Rundschau.

A Jewish vaudeville troupe, on government orders, is to begin working Nov. 26 with a farce called "Stewed Fruit."

The thin veneer of "concessions" did not alter the basis issues—the Jews still must pay a $400,000,000 penalty for the assassination of Ernst Von Rath, the Paris embassy secretary; plans for their mass emigration remain indefinite; they are ordered to sell their shops to Aryan proprietors before the first of the year.

Pawning Clothing.

The hardships were such that Vienna Jews were reported pawning clothing for money with which to buy food.

Newspaper attacks against Great Britain and the United States continued. The Boersen Zeitung called President Roosevelt the "prototype of the anti-German movement." Chancellor Hitler's Voelkischer Beobachter published a discussion of the westward migration of Mormons which was termed an "American parallel to the Jewish problem in Germany."

10,000 Acres to Be Available for Jews.

LONDON— (UP) —The governor of Tanganyika has expressed the opinion that about 10,000 acres of land may be available for the large scale settlement of Jewish refugees from Germany, Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain informed the house of commons today.

However, the governor said "Further investigation will be required" before the project can be made definite, Chamberlain added.

Chamberlain revealed that a small experimental scheme in Keyna colony already has been approved and young men already selected for it.

"If they are successful, they will be followed later by their families," the prime minister stated.

The prime minister made his statement before the opening of debate on the refugee question.

In addition to Tanganyika and Kenya, Chamberlain said "the possibility of a small-scale settlement is indicated in northern Rhodesia and Nyasaland."

He declared a careful survey would be necessary before any

17 Injured as Trams Crash In Fog at Martins Ferry

FIRE ENVELOPS WRECKED CARS AFTER MISHAP

Residents Pull Victims From Vehicles Colliding During Early Morning Rush.

(By International News Service)

MARTINS FERRY, O.—Two interurban cars, running in a thick fog which obscured signals and headlights collided head-on at Yorkville today injuring 17 persons, one so seriously he may die.

Residents of the village rushed from their homes in hastily donned clothing to pull the injured ones from the cars before flames which started immediately after the crash got to the passengers and motormen. Even before ambulances arrived from this city, Bellaire and Wheeling, W. Va., the two cars were smouldering ruins.

May Prove Fatal.

Hurt most seriously was Urban Green, 38, of Wheeling, motorman of one of the cars. At the hospital where he was rushed for emergency treatment, attaches reported his condition so serious that little hope is held for his recovery.

The others injured were:

Everett Schwender, 47, fracture of both legs and other injuries not determined immediately. Leonard Whitlach and Doris Koehler, of Martins Ferry; Virginia Gross, of Bridgeport; and Elsie Radu, of Tiltonville, were in emergency hospital wards and the extent of their injuries was unreported.

Less seriously hurt were George Downey, William Toser, Florence Moran, Dorothy Clary, Mary Parry and Maylor Dacis, of Martins Ferry; James Conger and Hazel Childers, of Bridgeport; Mary Renat, Mary Baker and Mary Roy, of Tiltonsville. They were treated for minor injuries and taken home.

The crash occurred as the morning rush to work in this industrial section was getting under way. Officials of the traction line in Wheeling were unable to give any explanation for the collision except that the heavy fog blanketed the Ohio valley at the time of the accident and the motormen probably were unable to see either the signals or the approaching headlights.

Company officials began an investigation immediately.

Urges U. S. to Keep Royal Visit Free of War Propaganda

WASHINGTON — (U.P.) — In a telegram to the United Press today, Rep. Hamilton Fish (R-NY), urged that the visit to the United States next year of King George VI and Queen Elizabeth be kept free of war propaganda, war commitments or secret treaties.

"The visit had better be cancelled," his telegram said, "if it is to be used as a smoke screen for establishing a military understanding or naval alliance, or for the purpose of entering into agreements for concerted or parallel action to police and quarantine the world."

The ranking Republican member of the house foreign affairs committee declared that this country's policy "should be to mind our own business and not to twist the British lion's tail on one side or attempt to pull British chestnuts out of the fire on the other."

He warned that the United States "has more to fear from enemies from within than from unfriendly armed forces from without."

Fish's telegram said he saw no reason why the American people should not welcome the visit of King George as an act of friendship and good will.

One of the best hunting stories of the season comes from Willard where Neal Slessman is trying to convince his friends that he bagged a rabbit and pheasant with one shot while hunting in the marshes south of Willard. DAYTON OPENS SCHOOLS AGAIN

34,000 Go Back to Classes as 3-Week 'Holiday' Ends; Future Indefinite.

(By Associated Press)

DAYTON—The doors of the city's school buildings swung open this morning to receive 34,000 pupils who were forced to quit their studies three weeks ago when funds for their classes ran out.

It was a job of "starting over again" for Supt. Emerson Landis and his corps of 1,350 teachers and employes. Books which were collected Oct. 28 had to be re-distributed and locker assignments given out. A full day of classroom work was planned, however, and Landis ordered the pupils back next Friday after the Thanksgiving holiday to help make up for the time lost.

Members of the board of education, who voted with the exception of one dissenter to close the schools when they faced a deficit of $61,000 and no operating funds, embarked on a "pay as you go basis" with approximately $430,228 available. There were no predictions whether or not classes could be continued for the full year. Landis said schools would be kept open "as long as finances permit."

The city rejected a special school tax levy at the Nov. 8 election.

SENATE G. O. P. MAPS PLANS TO KEEP BI-PARTISAN COALITION

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON — Prominent Republican senators disclosed today they were eager to retain the bi-partisan coalition which shelved the Roosevelt court bill and fought various other administration measures.

These men, although elated by their party's congressional gains, said Republicans in the 1939 senate and house should exercise caution in taking a partisan attitude.

In that way, they hope to keep the co-operation of anti-administration Democrats who heretofore have joined them in debate and roll calls.

Some politicians have predicted that the recent election would tend to weld divergent elements of the Democratic party together for a common-front fight against the Republican minroity.

Senator Vandenberg (R-Mich), however, expressed the view that the Republican gains "have not weakened the coalition."

"There will be no change in attitude on basic issues," he said, although he added that on "purely political issues" there might be less co-operation between Republicans and dissident Democrats in the future.

In several cases, Vandenberg asserted, the election may serve to strengthen the coalition movement. He recalled that Senators George (D-Ga), Smith (D-SC), and Tydings (D-Md), frequent administration opponents, were re-elected despite President Roosevelt's opposition.

In Tydings' primary race, Rev. David Lewis, his opponent, repeatedly told audiences that Tydings and Vandenberg had voted the same way on numerous issues.

In the new senate the Republicans will have 23 seats, exactly one-third the Democratic strength. To defeat an administration measure, they would need the votes of about 25 Democrats in the house, between 45 and 50 Democrats normally would have to join the Republicans in order to get a working majority.

'UNFIT' CHARGE HURLED BY DIES DURING INQUIRY

Chairman Assails Writings on Capitalism; Aviator Acosta to Testify.

(By International News Service)

WASHINGTON—The writings of a high official of the National Labor Relations board assailing the capitalist system and branding "Bourgeois Democracy a sham," were placed before the Dies house committee today as it continued its investigation into un-American activities.

The article, written by David J. Saposs, the board's chief economist in the December, 1931, issue of Labor Age, caused Chairman Martin Dies (D) of Texas, to declare that Saposs is "not fit to sit in on board hearings in which the affairs of labor and business are being considered."

Dies made this statement as the committee reconvened to hear Bert Acosta, aviator, testify regarding his observations and experiences while fighting with the Spanish Loyalist air force.

'Should Be Barred.'

In making the Saposs article part of the record of the committee, Dies declared that "there ought to be a law barring people like Saposs from government jobs."

According to the committee, Saposs wrote his article in the form of a report on the congress of the labor and socialist international which he attended in Europe while an instructor at the Brookwood labor college, a now-defunct radical labor school. After summarizing, Saposs purportedly made the following "personal observations":

"This a falacious attitude, the socialist movement must tell the people that capitalism cannot be stabilized and that the world cannot be saved by capitalist devices. . . .

". . . . Bourgeois democracy is a sham. When it is evident that socialism is the only remedy, it is not worth saving a democracy in which socialist parties only collaborate with capitalism. . . .

". . . If the attempt to carry out such a program political action fails, then the workers must unhesitatingly resort to organized force. The international must take the position that if another war occurs the workers will destroy capitalism. With that end in view the workers must be prepared to stretch arms across the frontiers in case of war and definitely win power for themselves."

TIES UP TRAFFIC

Ashlander Fined $80, Driving Rights Revoked for Year.

An Ashland man whose erratic driving tied up traffic on U. S. route 42 north of Mansfield yesterday afternoon so that 40 automobiles were lined up behind his car landed in municipal court today on charges of operating a motor vehicle while under the influence of alcohol.

Pleading guilty to the charge before Judge G. E. Kalbfleisch, William Boeberg, 47, manager of the Ashland Dime Delivery service, was fined $80 and costs and his operator's license revoked for one year.

Boeberg's companion, Earl Eikleberry, also of Ashland, charged with intoxication, pleaded guilty and was fined $5 and costs.

State Highway Patrolman C. W. Cale who arrested the pair near the city limits told the court that Boeberg who was driving toward Mansfield "was all over the road" and that about "40 cars" were lined up behind him and unable to pass.

BACK IN JAIL

Father of 2 Held to Grand Jury on Non-Support Charge.

After four months of freedom, Charles Wareham, 27, Ninth avenue, was back in the county jail today after pleading guilty in municipal court to a charge of non-support.

Wareham, who was released from jail last summer after serving a term for failure to support his wife and two children, is being held for the grand jury under $1,500 bond. He was unable to provide bond. He was arrested in Mansfield yesterday by Deputy Sheriffs G. C. Humphrey and Glenn Freeman on a warrant filed by Wareham's wife, Mrs. Christina Wareham.

FAIR ENOUGH!

Writer Eats Crow But Seasons It Slightly In Regard to Navy Officers

—By WESTBROOK PEGLER

NEW YORK—When worse pieces are written than mine of the 8th inst. regarding the flying services and the exclusiveness of the officers' corps of the navy they probably will be writen by the same hand. Impatient of compromise and half-measures, when I'm bad I am lousy, and I didn't need telling that I had fallen on my face, although several naval officers have been good enough to say so, in case you don't know.

I think it was as bad in its flippancy, which imparted an unintentional tone of rudeness and seeming contempt for the officers' corps, as in the lack of technical information about flying skill, equipment and organization.

This lack was total but for the sort of reading that any layman puts his eye to in casual browsing. And, although I began by saying that I seemed to be at my best when writing of things which I knew nothing about and therefore should be pretty good that day, it was effrontery to sound off.

So I take my wigging without smirk.

* * *

"Take a look sometime at the history of aviation and see what kept the interest and research alive from the end of the war to the Lindbergh flight," one officer wrote. "See who put up the cash for the development of the radical engines, who experimented with wing designs, who owned and operated the wind tunnels in which the designs were tested. Find out for yourself what strategic conditions Germany has to face and how they differ from ours and compare the two programs. Maybe Al Williams is right and maybe he is wrong, but he's not as right as you seem to imply nor is aviation in the government services the stepchild you infer it is.

"Look into the records of the transport fliers. See where they got their first training. See what percentage of them are in the reserve forces of aviation. Look at the list of flying cadets in training today and see how many of them get jobs with the transport companies after their tour of active duty is over. And tell me something:—why a flier shouldn't know something about the service he will revert to when his reaction time and his astigmatism get to be a menace not only to himself but to his fellows.

"Is it a fault that the navy wants big shots in the higher brackets who know something about aviation and hence wants to keep ex-flying men for sea duty, which involves an understanding of flying problems? Do you feel with Al that our whole future is tied up in aviation, that the land and sea forces are obsolete, or does the fact that Germany with all her air strength, still wants a navy at least a third the size of Britain's have any bearing on the subject?"

And so forth, without drawing a breath or repeating himself.

* * *

Well, all right, and this is the point at which I am going to let Mr. Williams hold the baby, because he is the one who calls the radial engine a built-in headwind and whoops it up for a streamline engine, who insists that the army and navy both regard the airplane as a weapon or an auxiliary, when, in his mind, it should be a service by itself co-operating with the two others, and who holds that the military air service should retain and not farm out to the passenger companies pilots developed at public expense by the army and navy.

This is no retort of mine, for I just don't know, but merely got hopped up on some contentions which Williams not only is willing to debate but cannot be restrained from promoting.

I would like to pick one splinter out of my pelt, however. The officer grants that there are many people outside the navy who would make good officers but still refuses to believe that the navy is a poor one simply for that reason. But I didn't say it was a poor navy for that or any other reason. I did call the naval academy a glorified high school in view of the fact that it admits boys, but, by the age limit and the promotional system, excludes from naval careers many young men who have acquired in other schools technical skill and learning which the navy should invite and somehow fit into suitable rank.

* * *

And I didn't then but I do now propose that the navy, considering the non-strenuous nature of many important positions could waive some of its highly fastidous requirements of teeth, toes and weight to admit as officers men of skill and brains who are not physically perfect.

There once was a very good naval officer named Lord Nelson, who lost first an eye and then an arm but fought right smart when he was reduced to a mere remainder.

Hollywood Speaks---

—By ROBBIN COONS

HOLLYWOOD—Scrooge sat in Reginald Owen's dressing room and talked. Scrooge was waiting to be called to the set, and he had on Reginald Owen's dressing gown and Reginald Owen's battered old slippers. He even smoked Reginald Owen's cigarets, and talked about Reginald Owen when the actor was mentioned. But he wasn't Reginald Owen.

This was due, almost entirely, to Jack Dawn—and to Reginald Owen's patience and forbearance.

Owen has been Make-up Man Dawn's No. 1 guinea pig in facial make-up experiments. Owen was the first actor to lose his own face and get a new one from Dawn. That was for the movie "Suicide Club," rechristened "Trouble for Two."

Owen, who ordinarily does not look like Robert Taylor and never threatens the romantic leading men, still has a good enough face of his own. From Jack Dawn he usually gets worse ones. That face in "Suicide Club" could belong only to a monster. The present one in "A Christmas Carol" could belong only to Scrooge.

* * *

Scrooge is bald except for a fuzzy tuft planted in the upper center of his high round forehead. The face is florid, as befits a crotchety old gent with the gout and no Christmas spirit, and the scowl-lines are deep over the shaggy grey eyebrows. The nose is sharp, and the mouth is thin and tight.

This day, however, Scrooge could smile. Jack Dawn had made the mask a little less tight so the Scrooge face could soften for the final regenerating scenes of "A Christmas Carol." The mask—and there is its importance in make-up—responds with the skin beneath to every change of facial expression.

The mask, said Scrooge-Owen, is quite improved since its first use in "Suicide Club," when it was prone to break out in "boils" under the heat of the lights. It is fairly simple now. Each morning Dawn takes his material—a sort of fungus mass—spreads it on Owen's face and there Scrooge stays all day until Dawn yanks him off, all in one piece. Nights, at least, Owen can see what he really looks like.

Scrooge-Owen was very happy, he said, to be a part of "A Christmas Carol."

"And thank heaven," he said, "it is being made as simply and sincerely as Dickens himself would have made it. It is not an epic, it is not colossal, it is simple and human and homely."

This brought up a discussion, naturally, of "Stablemates," which Owen (minus Scrooge) co-authored.

"Stablemates" really happened —almost.

Owen, driving home from Santa Anita racetrack one day, gave a stableboy a lift, subsequently befriended him. In time the lad disappeared, but one 3 a. m. Owen and his wife were awakened by a long distance call, collect from Arkansas. It was the stableboy, in distress. He needed $200 to take a horse to Baltimore. Owen sent $50, but the letter was returned unclaimed.

"The boy had acquired the horse substantially as we made Mickey Rooney acquire him in the picture," said Author Owen. "We took this incident, plus an operation we saw at Santa Anita, and we had our plot. And—this is a secret—I wrote the part of the old vet for myself. But I'm glad now I didn't get it. Wallace Beery did a much better job than I could have done."

SOCIETY & CLUBS

INFORMAL AFFAIRS TO PRECEDE DANCES

Several Members of Social Organizations Plan Parties; Thanksgiving Affairs Arranged for This Week.

IT'S THANKSGIVING week, of course, and there are plenty of social functions to be thankful for this year, too. Ardent dance fans of the city will be allowed only a brief Thursday to do justice to the holiday bird, for the whole latter part of the week is filled with festivities.

Wednesday evening the Delta Theta Tau sorority will usher in an evening of dancing and entertainment when the holiday party is held in the ballroom of the Mansfield-Leland hotel. Nels Blocher is providing the music.

After the evening clothes have come out for this first affair there will be nothing to keep them home Friday and Saturday night when the Our club and the University club entertain members and guests at dances. Bob Deikman's orchestra will play for the Our club formal function at the hotel.

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph T Lusignan, jr., Edgewood road, will entertain informally before the dance.

Officers of the club are Walter C. Stevens, president; Harold A Bruce, vice president; and Oliver C. Henkel, secretary-treasurer. The members of the board of governors are John F. Bissman, David N Feiser, Tom Ford and Paul A. Stoodt.

On Saturday night the University club set will swing to the tunes of the colored syncopator, Joe Cisco, and his Musical Magpies. This will be the second dance of the season for the organization. The affair will also be formal, and will be held in the ballroom of the Mansfield-Leland hotel. Mr and Mrs. M. L. Smith, 500 Parkview street, will have an informal gathering at home preceding the dance.

Country School To Have P. T. A. Meeting Tonight

With the approaching holiday and its accompanying school vacation most of the Parent Teachers associations and Mothers club are taking a brief breathing spell from their endless activities. Only one meeting is planned for this week, and that is tonight at 7:30 o'clock at Country Day school.

At this time a movie produced under the auspices of the National Progressive Education association will be shown. The movie demonstrates progressive group work. A discussion will follow led by Mrs. Vivien Haynes, director of the school.

There will be a social hour after the meeting, and Mrs. N. O. Weamer is in charge. Parents and teachers from other schools will be welcomed at this meeting, Mrs. Haynes stated.

COMING EVENTS FILL PRE-HOLIDAY WEEKS

Annual Sale for Blind to Be Sponsored by Conversational Club; P. T. A. to Present Dorothy Fuldheim.

CLUB activities apparently assume just two aspects along about this time of year—welfare work, and holiday parties. This week is especially quiet in organizational work because of the Thursday holiday, but the latter part of this month and the forepart of next shows which way the wind blows in Mansfield at least.

In accord with the custom of past seasons the clubs belonging to the Ohio Federation of Women's clubs will sponsor the annual sale for the blind. This event, which is probably the largest single welfare project in the city undertaken by clubs, will be held the week of Dec. 5. The Conversational club will be the sponsors.

A double-barrelled program will be presented here on Dec. 1 when Dorothy Fuldheim, lecturer and writer, appears under the auspices of two groups. In the morning she will speak at a lecture luncheon sponsored by the Mansfield Federation of Women. At 8:15 that evening she will speak to the public at a meeting at Central Methodist Episcopal church

The evening lecture, which is open to all citizens of Mansfield, will be sponsored by the Brinkerhoff Parent-Teachers association. She is expected to speak on her recent trip to Europe and the youth movement here and abroad at the lecture at the church

In addition to these several special events there will be the usual number of regular club and sorority meetings throughout the next four busy weeks.

Inconsiderate Attitude Loses Love

One In a Series.
By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

One of the surest and quickest ways of losing your sweetheart is to be—inconsiderate. As a recipe, it's absolutely reliable. It is also warranted to lose the affection of wives, husbands, friends, relatives, and more often than not, jobs.

Six Ways To Lose Him, Or Her.

Who has time for the blunderer, who goes through life stepping on everyone's toes? The bore, who never thinks of the rights or feelings of others? Who is thoughtless, discourteous, inconsiderate?

The more usual class of inconsiderates are that way because they're selfish. They neglect to do the decent thing because they dislike to put themselves out.

Ruffianly behavior was condoned after the World war as developing personality or some such foolishness as "not depriving them of the power of choice." Naturally the "power of choice" led these youngsters to behave as hoodlums and savages. It was great fun, as long as it lasted. But it didn't last into job getting. No one wanted them after a few weeks—they just didn't fit.

These "rhinestones in the rough," as they have been called, may have been actually diamonds. But no one had time to stop long enough to polish them. It was so much easier to hire the considerate mannerly specimen in the first place.

There is another type of inconsiderate individual, met more often in fiction, and on the stage, than in real life. He is the lovable genius, whose highbrow is so full of great thoughts that he stumbles over all the conventions.

The more usual class of inconsiderates neglect to consider other people's feelings at the expense of their own. They are great folk for alibis. They have on tap endless excuses for their disregard of others. They are so fluent in acquitting themselves of their selfish behavior that one is tempted to wonder whether it wouldn't have been easier to do the decent thing in the first place.

Continuation of "Married Comrades"

As soon as he was safely out of hearing, I gave a hurried direction to Bill.

"Go ahead of us and signal a taxi, Bill," I said. "We shall be right at your heels. Tell him to take us to the Lansfield—"

"The Lansfield!" Hank exclaimed. "Why! I thought we were—"

"And so we are, my bonny buck," his sister assured him. "We're going to feed all our faces in royal fashion. This is just camouflage, ain't so, Auntie Madge?"

"Something like that," I answered, smiling. "When we get to a place where we can, we'll tell the taxi driver we've changed our minds, and ask him to take us to the restaurant. The ruse may throw the detective off the track, but even if it doesn't, we'll arrange to get a corner table so that the detective can't get behind us while he tries to hear what we're saying. And if we have good luck, he may not be near us at all."

"I don't imagine either he or his employer, whoever he or she may be, is much interested in our conversation. His concern is where Mary spends her time during her absence from the hotel."

"And he'll probably be terribly disappointed, poor dear," Mary mocked. "to find out I'm doing nothing but having a farewell family party with my darling brothers."

"I wish you'd let us handle him, Auntie Madge," Bill said with a wistful note underlying the grimness of his tone.

"You mean man-handle him, don't you, Bill?" I countered, smiling at him.

"Something like that," he admitted.

"There's one thing we can do if you'll let us," Bill said

'Name it," I countered.

"Hank and I can take turns watching through the rear window of the taxi to see what the man does, and try to lamp whichever pal he sics on us when he gets afraid we'll suspect him."

"That's a very good idea, Bill," I said, "and I shall be glad to have you act upon it. But remember, if he has any brain cells, he'll be watching our cab to see if anybody is watching him."

"We'll be careful," Bill promised. "We're sitting with our faces to the rear anyway, so it will be perfectly natural for us to look through the back window."

"Thats true," I admitted, "and you have my permission to watch for him out of the window as much as you please. But hurry out and call a taxi, or he'll be coming back in here to see if we've gone out through the windows."

Attitude, Not Age, Make One Old

By MME. QUI VIVE

No woman can bear to see her beauty petals fall. If she's smart she won't let them, not for a long, long time. She will make every possible effort to keep within finger touch of her youth. But if the marks have come and cannot be erased she should accept them graciously, make such changes in dress and deportment as become more advanced years. Life isn't done for by a long shot when the face is lined and the topcrest frosted. One can still be gay, find life zestful and worth while.

When a woman takes on an expensive waist line, develops heavy ankles, adds an extra chin and crawls around without spirit or energy, she is old no matter what the record of her birthday may be. At least she's not having much fun. Toting excess baggage is such a laborious business that she lets up on activities and conditions grow worse. If defensive measures aren't taken, she will rival the spreading chestnut tree, buy her clothes in the department given over to stylish stouts. And then what? A dull life.

The way to defeat the old man with the scythe and the long white whiskers is to pay heed to diet and posture, to keep close watch on the bathroom scales. The mental state can invite or stave off evidence of age. Animation, cheerfulness, the friendly manner are rejuvenating elements of the highest grade. Dolefulness sweeps one into old age.

One must step along with the parade, never fall behind. Keep up with the world's affairs, see new movies, read new books.

If the elderly lady is slender she can wear youthful clothes. All the old girls need a bit of gay color. A perky hat on white hair is fascinating. How one should dress depends pretty much on the figure and personality.

A touch of rouge on the cheeks, a light film on the lips help like all get out. A nap after luncheon is a restorative, refreshes the spirits and the body.

HOROSCOPE

For Tuesday, Nov. 22.

According to astrological as well as astronomical tenets, affairs are likely to be under a cloud, physically as well as psychically on this day, owing to a partial eclipse of the sun. This forecasts rather difficult, adverse and doubtful conditions, with probably important reactions on the employment, relations with superiors and those in authority. The mind may have rather erratic slants or radical ideas, which should be wisely managed if benefits are to ensue.

If It Is Your Birthday.

Those whose birthday it is may expect a year of rather important experiences, in which advantage must be wrested from obscure, chaotic and perplexing circumstances. This may be felt particularly in the occupation or profession, or in contacts with those in power and authority. These foggy or singular situations might be turned to excellent account, with beneficial change, if sagaciously and tactfully handled. Promotion and preferment are not improbable.

A child born on this day, although being versatile, energetic and ambitious, may have rather unusual or radical mental trends which may make its life adventurous and its fortunes fluctuating, unless it be directed into the proper groove of expression.

Soup Gives Variety, Nourishment

By ALICE LYNN BARRY

THE BUSINESS girl who likes to get her own dinner, the professional woman who finds surcease when she has a bite to eat in her own home, the mother with a large family to feed—they all want soup. And, wisely enough, they stock up on the marvelous soups that are on the market, soups packed full of good things, nourishment and gustatory satisfaction.

So much can be done with these good soups. Tomato soup, thick and condensed, just as it comes from the can, is perfect tomato sauce for meat loaf, hamburger and things like that. It is grand to add to pan gravy; and poured over pot roast in the cooking, it brings out the flavor of the meat.

Before we move on to some delectable soup combinations, here are some soup pointers. In emptying the contents of a can of chicken soup, be sure to scoop out the rich chicken fat that clings to the lid and sides of the can. The cream of mushroom soup must be stirred vigorously to smooth it out. Also add milk and water before heating, and stir it to smoothness. Then heat. The same goes for pea, asparagus and celery soups. The cream of mushoom makes a grand sauce when one-quarter to one-half cup of milk or water is added.

Vegetable Chowder.

Vegetable chowder, grand for this time o' year, is easily made by combining and heating one can condensed pea soup and one can condensed pease soup and one can of milk. It serves four or five.

Pepper pot supper potage is the sort of dish to serve on Sunday night when it is cold and blowy. To make from five to seven portions, use one can pepper pot soup, one can tomato soup and one can of milk (always using soup can to measure). Use soups condensed; that is, just as they come from the can.

Creole Manhattan is quite a grand affair, particularly nice for a buffet supper. It requires one can condensed clam chowder, one can condensed chicken gumbo soup and one can light cream. Mix the two soups, then add the light cream measured in a soup can. Heat but do not boil.

Tomato Variations.

Two variations on the popular tomato soup theme include tomato and vegetable-beef and chicken-tomato. The former calls for one can each condensed tomato soup and vegetable-beef combined and heated to boiling point. It serves five to seven. The second soup calls for two cans condensed chicken soup, one can condensed tomato soup, one can light cream or milk and one can water. Empty can of tomato soup in a saucepan and to it add two cans of chicken soup. Then add one soup can of light cream or milk and a can of water. Heat and serve. It makes seven to nine portions. This is also a grand buffet supper dish.

Soup provencale calls for one can condensed chicken soup, one can condensed celery soup, one-half soup can of water, one-half soup can of milk. Heat and serve. It makes four-five portions.

BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

By Shepard Barclay
"The Authority on Authorities"

TIME TO DUCK

PLAYING THIRD HAND high is one of those old generality rules which helps to guide relative beginners. But if you are opposed to a no trump game and your partner leads a suit in which you find more length than he, it will usually pay you to play low when you have no possible entry to your hand except a single high card in that suit. Sometimes the fourth-best lead will enable you to read the exact situation and see just how the low play is certain to beat the contract.

(Dealer: South. East-West vulnerable).

South started the bidding on this deal with 1-Diamond. North responded with 1-Heart, South called 2-Clubs, North 3-Clubs and South 3-No Trump.

When West led the spade 4, the 8 was played from dummy, the Q by East and South won with the A. South ran four heart tricks and then lost a trick to the club K. West cashed his three high spades but was unable to set the contract.

If East had stopped to consider before playing his spade Q to the first trick, his side would have been able to cash five spades instead of three. West had a four card suit, which meant that South had only a singleton, certainly the A to account for the no trump bid. If that was the case, West held the K-J 9 and no card low enough to get East in. East's correct play was not to cover but to play the 6 or 7 to indicate to partner to continue the suit when next in the lead.

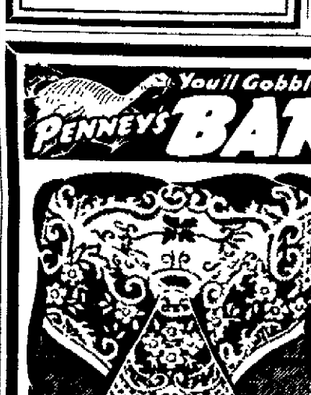
Tomorrow's Problem.



(Dealer: North. Neither side vulnerable).

What bidding on this deal produces the best result?

My Neighbor Says:

To remove a spot of oil spilled on a rug, rub the spot with gasoline until it disappears.

When decorations are added to cookie dough—such as dates or nuts—press them well down into the dough. Otherwise they may come off during the baking.

Chocolate and orange flavors blend well. Add orange extract to chocolate frosting or candy. Try covering a chocolate cake with orange frosting.

If you have brick around your fireplace or flagstone hearth try rubbing it with oil applied on a soft cloth. Brick treated in such a manner will have a more seasoned appearance.

False Teeth Wearers Are Worst Breath Offenders!

"Need More Than a Mouth Wash" say Authorities... Recommend Polident

Plates and bridges soak up odors and impurities like a sponge! A thin dark scum collects on them. This scum holds germs and decay bacteria. It is so tough that ordinary brushing seldom removes it. And it gets into every tiny crevice where brushing can't even reach. Almost always it results in "denture breath"—probably the most offensive of all breath odors.

Yet there's a perfect way to clean and purify false teeth without brushing, acid or danger. It is Polident, the powder that dissolves away all scum, stains, tarnish and odor. Makes breath sweeter—and plates or bridges look better and feel better. Tens of thousands call Polident a blessing for comfort, convenience and hygiene. Long-lasting can costs only 30¢ at any drug store. Approved by Good Housekeeping Bureau and dentists everywhere.

Cleans, Purifies Like Magic
Add a little Polident powder to ½ glass water. Stir. Then put in plate or bridge for 10 to 15 minutes—Rinse—and it's sweet and purified—ready to use!

Prevents "Denture Breath"

How To Relieve Misery of Your CHEST COLD

If you are suffering from a miserable chest cold, try this: Massage throat, chest, and back with Vicks VapoRub at bedtime. Then spread a thick layer on chest and cover with warmed cloth.

VapoRub goes right to work to bring relief—two ways at once. (1) Direct through the skin like a poultice; (2) Direct to the irritated air-passages with its medicated vapors.

This poultice-vapor action loosens phlegm—clears air-passages—checks tendency to cough—relieves local congestion.

Tygers Called Massillon Win--

* * * * *

Brown Slated for Promotion

* * * * *

Notre Dame Tops U. S. Ladder

WELL, the Tygers were right. They knew what they were talking about after their whipping by Canton McKinley. They said the Bulldogs were tough, but contended that the Tigers were tougher. The Tigers proved it Saturday when they trimmed Canton, 12 to 0, to remain on the top step of the Ohio scholastic football ladder.

Denied a touchdown in the first period on a fumble on the five, the Massillonites came back in the second quarter to tally twice. Capt. Vince Snyder tallied on a plunge from the one for the first score, and Bill Zimmerman, Massillon's blocking back, went over from the four for the second touchdown.

The nearest the powerful Canton club could get to the goal was the 2-yard line, where it lost the ball on downs in the fourth period. Marion Motley, Canton's 196-pound fullback, who caused the Tygers so much trouble, found the going rather tough against the alert Massillon line.

Saturday's game probably marked the last of Coach Paul Brown's Massillon teams. Brown is slated for an Ohio college job, according to reports.

Michigan Place Three on AP Big Ten Team.

THE 1938 all Big Ten eleven reflected Michigan's football renaissance today as Western conference coaches named three Wolverines, including two sophomores, in their annual selections for the Associated Press.

Tom Harmon, halfback, and Forest Evashevski, quarterback, were the sophomores—the first to earn all conference ranking since 1934 when Ed Widseth of Minnesota and Merle Wendt of Ohio State achived first-year honors.

Last year all were seniors except Francis Twedell of Minnesota. Twedell placed again this year, sharing guard honors with Ralph Heikkinen, Michigan's third member—one more than any other school placed. The coaches nominated three juniors—Jack Murray of Wisconsin, center; Erwin Prasse of Iowa, end, and Louis Brock of Purdue, halfback.

The team was rounded out with such veterans as Bob Haak of Indiana and Joe Mihal of Purdue at tackle, Cleo Diehl of Northwestern at end and Wisconsin's Howie Weiss at fullback. Weiss topped all other players in the poll with eight first team votes. Alex Schoenbaum, Ohio State tackle, made the second team.

Meanwhile, the Golden Gophers of Minnesota still wear the Western conference football crown—a crown won in 1934 and never since worn by anyone except Northwestern's 1936 eleven.

During the "jitterbug" conference race, it appeared Northwestern again might snatch away the championship when it handed Minnesota its only defeat. Wisconsin's dark horse eleven, with title ambitions of its own, helped balk this move by flattening the Wildcats, but couldn't follow through last week against the Gophers.

Ohio State May Elect First-Year Man Captain.

COACH FRANCIS SCHMIDT'S fifth and least successful Ohio State football squad will close the 1938 season officially tonight with the traditional squad appreciation dinner in the Ohio Union where the 1939 captain or co-captains will be announced

In view of the developments of a bright crop of sophomores this fall and a comparative shortage of outstanding junior players, there was some speculation whether the squad might not break with tradition and name a first-year man as next year's captain. Whoever becomes the playing leader, he and his mates will look ahead to 1939 fairly confident they will better the 1938 record.

Despite a tough schedule including Northwestern, Minnesota, Cornell and Michigan, the 1939 squad will be equipped with an all-veteran backfield and center of the front line unless ineligibility or unforeseen accidents intervene.

The chief graduation losses will occur at the tackles where Co-Captain Carl Kaplanoff, Alex Schoenbaum and Joe Aleskus will be missing and at the ends where Keith Bliss and Wendell Lohr depart.

In seeking replacements, Schmidt undoubtedly will insist the new forwards have the speed afoot so sorely missed in the 1938 line. The fast-charging Michigan forwards, probably the best to appear in Ohio stadium this fall, emphasized the speed deficiency.

The slowness of the linemen plus their poor grounding in two football fundamentals—blocking and tackling—probably played the major role in bringing three defeats and a tie to Ohio State in eight games this fall.

Never before had Schmidt lost more than one Big Ten game or won less than four since he took over the Buck coaching reins in 1934. This season's club tasted decisive defeat from Purdue and Michigan, was tied by Northwestern and won three games—Chicago Indiana and Illinois. Outside the Big Ten, Ohio State lost to Southern California but romped over a weak New York U

Next season's Big Ten schedule will be no easier. Minnesota, 1938 champion, replaces Pudue among the conference foes while Missouri and Cornell two schools where football is on the upsurge, substitute for N. Y U and U. S C.

The 1939 schedule: Oct. 7, Missouri, here; Oct 14 Northwestern, here; Oct. 21, Minnesota, there, Oct 28, Cornell, here, Nov. 4, Indiana, here; Nov. 11, Chicago, there, Nov 18, Illinois, here, Nov. 25, Michigan, there.

Bantams Trim Akron, 13-0

Mansfield Club Scores in Second and Fourth Periods to Hang Up First Win of Season.

CLYDE ADAM'S Bantams got their first taste of victory this season at the Fairground Sunday when they trimmed the South Akron Merchants, 13 to 0, before a good-sized crowd.

The game was played as a benefit for Michael Ondov, Wittenberg college student, who suffered a broken back in an automobile accident near the city a year ago.

The Mansfield gridmen displayed their best football of the season as they handed the visitors their first setback of the campaign. These two teams played to a scoreless tie several weeks ago.

Punt Sets Stage.

A spectacular 70-yard punt by Fred Hallabrin, which went out of bounds on the Akron team's five, set up the first Mansfield touchdown. Unable to run out of danger, against the strong Mansfield line, Akron attempted to punt and the kick was blocked.

Joe Jerger fumbled the pigskin in his attempt to recover it and Akron regained the ball.

Akron's second attempt to boot the ball out of danger again was blocked by Jerger. Joe Hallabrin picked the ball out of the air and raced 12 yards for the score. The try for extra point failed.

Early in the fourth period, Mansfield, with Musille, Wise and Fred Hallabrin taking turns at lugging the leather, marched from midfield to the six, the point from where the latter went across. Wise passed to Seifert for the extra point.

Later in the period, the Adamsmen again threatened, but lost the ball on a fumble deep in Akron territory.

The invaders threatened several times, but the nearest they came to crossing the goal was the 11, where they lost the ball on downs in the second half.

Several members of the Akron team did not reach Mansfield due to an auto accident outside of Akron. Late in the game when Yale, Akron halfback, was forced to retire because of an injured ankle. Coach Harry Dandakis loaned the visitors Osgar, a lineman.

Willard Boy Wins Touchdown Crown

CHICAGO — (AP) — Two big scoring sprees, one against Chicago for three touchdowns and another against Illinois for three more, were enough to win individual Big Ten football scoring honors for Jim Langhurst of Willard, O., Ohio State sophomore halfback. He wound up with 36 points, 15 more than Don Scott, a teammate.

John Boswane Stars In Win

Scores Twice as East End Trims Lions, 42-6.

Led by Johnny Boswane, who scored two touchdowns and passed for four others, the East End All-Stars trounced the North End Lions, 42 to 6, at the Taylor-Dise field Sunday.

Boswane scored the first touchdown when he took the opening kick-off and returned it 75 yards through a broken field into the end zone. Later in the period, he passed to Pete Schadek for a score to give the All-Stars a 12 to 0 lead at the end of the opening quarter.

Schadek and Mosberg took t...ows from Boswane for touchdowns in the second period. It was in this quarter that the Lions tallied their lone score. Wonkovski scored from the five.

Boswane's pass to Luckie accounted for the only touchdown registered in the third period, and carried three players with him as he added the first of two scores in the fourth frame from the 10 Fred Buzard hung up the final score on a sweep from the 20. The blocking of Hollis and Luckie featured the tussle.

MAY BOOK DAYTON

Five Turkey Day Tilts End Ohio College Grid Season

By FRITZ HOWELL

COLUMBUS —(AP)— Ohio drops the curtain on its college football follies of 1938 Thanksgiving day, with nine of the state's teams participating in the five scheduled contests.

Following the Turkey day combats only two Dec. 3 tilts are on the books Toledo going to San Antonio, Tex, to play St. Marys, and Wilberforce traveling to Orlando, Fla., to clash with the Florida A M College of Tallahassee.

Two of the Thanksgiving day scraps have bearings on titles in the Ohio realm Case meets Western Reserve at Cleveland in a morning tilt and if the rough riders upset the unbeaten-untied Red Cats the state championship goes to Wooster's Scots, who already have the Ohio conference gonfalon tucked away in their trophy case.

The other title game involves Dayton and Ohio Wesleyan in the Gem City stadium. The Flyers must win to share the Buckeye conference crown with Ohio university, which has finished its pigskin chores.

Miami and Cincinnati clash in the Queen City in the oldest grid rivalry west of the Alleghenies, and also at Cincinnati Toledo's Rockes and Xavier's Musketeers, two of the state's outstanding outfits, meet in a tilt that has all the earmarks of a real thriller. The fifth game pits Wilberforce against West Virginia State.

1,200 Fans See Scoreless Tilt

Rabbit Siler Crosses Line on Last Play, But Official Rules Out Touchdown.

By CHARLES MARTIN

THE city semi-pro championship is still an unsettled issue among Mansfield football players and fans today.

Approximately 1,200 spectators swarmed into League park Sunday to watch the Kallmerten and Baer combine and Brownie's Misfits battle to a scoreless tie in a thrill-packed tussle for the title.

Coach Gip Miller's machine held the edge in almost every department but fumbles and the Misfits' stout defense held the Coals in check whenever they moved into enemy territory

The Misfits had a wealth of grid material available Sunday, but found it impossible to display a running attack that could click off the yards.

Brownie's outfit had trouble all afternoon trying to break its set of fast backs in the open. Poor blocking and a hard-charging K-B forward wall kept the Misfits on their heels.

A last-minute passing attack carried the Coals 50 yards to the Misfits 20, but lack of time cost the K-B's another try at the touchdown door.

Calls Ball Dead

"Rabbit" Siler gave the fans a thrill on the last play of the contest when he took a lateral from Alex Schwaner, who was stopped after snagging a 30-yard heave from Vern Heiser, and raced across the goal. But Umpire Frappy Underwood ruled the ball dead before Schwaner tossed the lateral.

The Misfits threatened once in the opening period and again in the third, while the Coals' most dangerous threat came in the second stanza.

John Gross set the stage for the Misfits' threat in the first quarter when he intercepted a K-B pass on the Coals' 30. On the first play a forward-lateral placed the ball on the 10. The rugged Kallmerten and Baer line stiffened and in three plays drove the enemy back to the 15. Siler batted down Moxley's pass in the end zone to halt the threat.

It was the closest the Misfits moved into the Coals territory.

The K-B's started clicking in the second stanza and marched 40 yards to the Misfits' eight. Three plays carried the pigskin to the one, and then Ike Fetter recovered a fumble on the two to stop the goalward drive.

A fumble stopped another K-B march in the third period after it drove 30 yards to the Misfits 17. Joe Zimmerman recovered the bobble.

That second fumble seemed to take the life out of the Coals' attack and not once after that did they put on a sustained drive.

The Coals played a great defensive game, holding the Misfits to three first downs. Two on penalties and the other on a pass. Brownie's team chalked up a net gain of three yards from rushing picking up 44 and losing 41.

Dangerous Threat

Gene Brandon was probably the Misfits most dangerous threat. Several times it looked like he might get away, but his teammates inability to supply some timely blocking kept him bottled up.

George Hummel and Harry Ross turned in nifty performances in halting the K-B's sweeps.

The most improved department in the Coals' defense was their ability to break up the Misfits' aerial attack. Moxley tossed 11 passes, but could make connections for only one of them.

Miller's machine clicked off 147 yards from rushing and marked up seven first downs

BUYING IN AIR STOCKS PROPS STOCK MARKET

Aviations Buoyed by Prospects of Heavy Demand in Re-armament Program.

(By Associated Press)

NEW YORK—Renewed buying of aircrafts provided the principal prop for today's stock market.

Many recent favorites moved sluggishly and, near the second hour, prices were slightly mixed. Dealings barely kept the ticker tape in motion.

Gains of fractions to a point or so were posted for Douglas Aircraft, Boeing, United Aircraft, Glenn Martin, Aviation Corp., U. S. Steel, Bethlehem, Western Union, General Motors, Chrysler, N. Y. Central, and DuPont.

Phelps Dodge, Anaconda and American Smelting edged forward despite another reduction in scrap and export copper quotations.

The aviation department was again buoyed by prospects of heavy demands for planes in the re-armament program. Bonds and commodities were somewhat uneven.

Market analysts found moderate encouragement in the survey of the magazine Steel.

"New business in some products is heavier than a month ago," the review said, "but with active buying of sheets and strip made unnecessary by previous heavy coverage, total bookings in November appear likely to fall below the October volume.

Over trade sources estimated that 13 of the leading steel companies during the third quarter suffered a net loss, before preferred dividend requirements, of 50 cents a ton on their capacity. This would compare with an aggregate loss of 58 cents a ton in the second three months.

THEATERS

LESLIE HOWARD will play the role of the phonetics expert who transformed a Covent Garden flower girl into a court beauty in George Bernard Shaw's "Pygmalion", which is being filmed in England and will be released here through M-G-M . . . One of the most interesting productions of the new year will be Mickey Rooney as Huck Finn . . . Josef Von Sternberg wields the megaphone again in "New York Cinderella" in which he directs Hedy Lamarr and Spencer Tracy . . . "The Shining Hour", soon to be released, has an irresistable cast with Joan Crawford, Margaret Sullavan, Robert Young, Melvyn Douglas and Fay Bainter . . .

* * *

For Uncle Sam.

Shirley Temple sets out to help Uncle Sam in her new picture, "Just Around the Corner", the current Madison attraction, but she gets her Uncle Sams mixed and stages her big benefit program for a wealthy bachelor instead of for the gentleman with the high hat, long whiskers and striped pants. The benefit, in which the star is assisted by Bert Lahr, Joan Davis, and Bill Robinson, is a huge success—of course.

* * *

Where Your Dollar Goes.

An interesting short reel at the Ohio shows what happens to the movie goers dollar after they once pass under the bars at the box office windows. The film is a supplementary one to the feature "Men With Wings", a thrilling tale of men who were born to fly. A tremendously interesting story is unfolded along with the development of planes and aviation. Fred MacMurray, Ray Milland, Louise Campbell, Andy Devine and Walter Abel are in the cast.

* * *

Two Lives in a Year.

The story of a girl who tries to live two lives in a single year is told in "City Girl", one of the features at the Ritz. Phyllis Brooks is the girl of the tenements who gets mixed up with gangsters. Ricardo Cortz, Robert Wilcox and Chick Chandler have the major roles. "Love Finds Andy Hardy" with Mickey Rooney and a trio of attractive young actresses is also on the bill.

Adventuress With Curls.

Edith Fellows, one of the popular juvenile players, is the star of "The Little Adventuress," which comes to the Majestic tomorrow and will be shown through Wednesday only. The action starts when a wire snaps in a circus and two acrobats are hurled to death, leaving a small orphaned daughter. On the same bill will be "True Confession" with Carole Lombard, Fred MacMurray and John Barrymore.

Helen Mack Returns.

Helen Mack, pretty brunet actress who has been away from films for more than a year, comes back in "I Stand Accused", the story of a struggling young attorney, which the Park is showing. Thomas Beck is the attorney who sticks to the ethics of his profesion while his college chum, Robert Cummings grows rich as the mouthpiece of the underworld. A famous film of several years ago "It Happened One Night", is also shown.

ENVOYS TO MAP CODE OF PEACE

Writer Reviews Past Work of Pan-American Conference, Relations of Republics.

Argentina.

One of the American delegates to that first Pan-American conference was Andrew Carnegie, who later gave the money to erect a building here for the Pan-American union.

The opposition of Argentina to the United States, begun 50 years ago, has marked most of the Pan-American conferences. A high degree of friendship and co-operation was reached between them, however, at the inter-American conference for the maintenance of peace (not a Pan-American conference, which is held every five years) That meeting was suggested by President Roosevelt and convoked by Argentina at Buenos Aires in 1936.

Eighth Conference.

The conference at Lima will be the eighth. At these meetings, and the special session of 1936, a groundwork has been laid for peace among the American nations and for possible common action in case of aggression from outside.

The Pan-American states have arrived at agreements guaranteeing one another's independence and territory, providing for arbitration and conciliation, refraining from intervening in one another's affairs, condemning war of aggression, refusing to recognize territory taken by force, and arranging cultural exchanges.

Under the auspices of the Pan-American conference other meetings have been held for the advancement of banking exchanges and regulations, building of railroads and motor-roads, including a Pan-American highway which one day may run from Alaska to Patagonia, protection of women's rights, and similar matters.

It is significant that in the 50 years of Pan-Americanism great wars have ravaged Europe and Asia but the states of the western hemisphere, as among themselves, have been mostly at peace. Isolated conflicts, such as that between Bolivia and Paraguay, have been exceptions.

COUNTY'S TURKEY FARMS BUSY PLACES AS HOLIDAY APPROACHES

Richland county's few turkey farms had an air of unusual activity today, preparing to deliver at least 50 per cent of the county's estimated 1,500 "home-grown" turkeys to local markets for Thanksgiving dinners. About half the flocks will be saved for the Christmas market.

Four farms within a few miles of Mansfield have approximately 1,000 birds that were raised for the express purpose of decorating Thanksgiving and Christmas dinner tables. There are 450 at the R. B. Gardner farm, 300 at the Jacob Wolf turkey farm, 200 ready for market at the E. C. Miller farm and 100 at the J. T. Shaffer farm.

The price of turkey this year varies little from that of recent years. Fancy turkeys, fed with raw milk, will sell for 36 cents for the gobblers and 38 cents for the hens, fully dressed, while others will sell for a price range between 33 and 35 cents.

New York dressed birds—that is with only the feathers off—will sell for 27 to 29 cents.

The average price for one of the better turkeys will be 35 cents, so that a 12-pound bird will start the Thanksgiving dinner off with an outlay of $4.20.

And if you are preparing a dinner for six and are having all the trimmings, you had better start out to do the marketing with something like $7 or $8—without counting bread, butter, coffee and cream.

Cranberries are scarce and expensive and are selling now for 23 cents a quart. Then of course, you'll have oysters, either escalloped or for dressing, and the standard quality is 55 cents per quart. Sweet potatoes for six will cost you about 20 cents, and celery will add 20 or 25 cents.

If you are one of those old-fashioned observers of Thanksgiving and consider dried sweet corn as important as the turkey itself, add another 50 cents, for this delicacy which originated with the Pilgrim home makers is 50 cents a pound this year.

Your green vegetable will be your cheapest dish on the menu for either sprouts of cauliflower won't be more than 20 cents.

If you think your Thanksgiving dinner should start off with a thin soup or fruit cocktail and should end with salted nuts—you'll have to go back home for more money.

scheme could be started for British Guiana, because of the backward agricultural development of the country and poor communications.

'No-More-War' Policy Delayed by Attacks.

PARIS—(U.P.)—Germany's anti-Semitic campaign and bitter press attacks on Great Britain have delayed publication of French and German notes announcing a "no-more-war" policy, informed quarters said today.

The declaration, paralleling that of Fuehrer Adolf Hitler and Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain in Munich, have been prepared. A competent source said the French-German declaration already has been signed and has been for some time.

Premier Edouard Daladier and Foreign Minister Georges Bonnet have been awaiting an opportune moment for publication, to get the best possible effect.

But meanwhile, it was said, anti-Jewish agitation expanded so rapidly that now the French hesitate to publish it, although it generally had been expected they would do so before the arrival here Wednesday of Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain and Foreign Secretary Lord Halifax of Great Britain.

It was believed the meeting may turn out to be a prelude to a second four-power meeting.

Hold German People Deplore Suffering.

MONTREAL—(U.P.)—Many German citizens deplore the sufferings of the Jews in Germany, but are powerless to help them, Jewish refugees from Austria en route to new homes in Australia said today.

There were 154 in the group, most of them business and professional men to whom the British government offered new homes. En route to the West coast to board a ship for Australia, all had high hopes they would get a new start.

Many of the German people disapproved the Nazi anti-Semitic campaign, they said, but none dared offer help.

"It is suicide for a German to help a Jew," one refugee said. "It means the concentration camp for the German if he is caught."

The refugee told of pitiful conditions for the Jews in Germany. Some had money with them; others were penniless.

The refugees would not permit their names to be used, saying it would cause reprisals against friends and relatives still in Germany. A special tram carried them across Canada to Vancouver to board a liner which will land them in Australia within another month.

Protest Nazi Purge At Mass Meeting.

NEW YORK—(U.P.)—Representatives of all major religions will hold a mass demonstration here tonight to protest the German campaign against religious and racial minorities.

Joseph B. Keenan, assistant U. S. district attorney, heads an imposing list of speakers at the rally, arranged by the American sponsoring committee against Nazi outrages

Sen. Robert F. Wagner, D., N. Y., a German-born immigrant, climaxed Sunday's nation-wide prayer for the victims of the Nazi drive in a speech last night charging that Germany's policy was "the pagan philosophy of brute force."

Millions of church-goers throughout the nation answered the appeal of President Roosevelt and prayed for the German victims.

MEN LOVE GIRLS WITH PEP

If you are peppy and full of fun, men will invite you to dances and parties.

BUT if you are cross, listless and tired, men won't be interested. Men don't like "quiet" girls. When they go to parties they want girls along who are full of pep.

So in case you need a good general system tonic, remember for 3 generations one woman has told another how to go "smiling thru" with Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. It helps build up more physical resistance and thus aids in giving you more pep and lessens distress from female functional disorders.

You'll find Pinkham's Compound WELL WORTH TRYING!

"HAVEN'T FELT SO WELL IN YEARS," SAYS HOME TOWN LADY

East Park Ave. Resident Asserts Long Suffering From Bilious Feelings, Dizziness, Coated Tongue, Spots Before Eyes, Due to Constipation, Have Vanished Since Taking Vendol. Recommends it to All Who Suffer.

MRS. JESSIE B. LEMUNYON

"Truly, I haven't felt so well in years and I owe it all to taking Vendol," are the enthusiastic words of Mrs Jessie B. LeMunyon a well known and highly respected lady living at 176 Park Ave East Mansfield, in a recent conversation with the Vendol Man who is now daily at Central Drug Store, Cor. Main and 4th Sts, meeting the public and explaining all about this great Root, Herb and Alkaline medicine.

"I don't know what I would have done had I not found Vendol when I did. Constipation had been bothering me for the longest time, and here of late just everything went wrong. I lost all desire for food and although I ate just about enough to keep me alive, meals always distressed me with indigestion, quantities of painful gas, sourness, acid-risings and heartburn. Headaches were by no means strangers to me, and my nerves were so ragged that I almost forgot what sound sleep at night was like.

"I heard of so many local people getting relief in cases similar to mine, however that I determined to try Vendol myself.

"Sure enough, it helped me just as it did all those other folks. First, it got my bowels moving more efficiently than they had in years. And now, though I've taken it just a short time, I have such a healthy appetite that I can hardly wait for mealtime, and what a pleasure it is to know that I can now eat my fill without suffering in the slightest afterwards. Not only that, I haven't had a headache in weeks and my nerves are so calm that I sleep like a baby every night. I most certainly wish to take this opportunity to publicly recommend Vendol to every person who suffers like I used to."

Give this great Root, Herb and Alkaline medicine a chance to help you, too. Most all leading druggists sell it and the Vendol Man (formerly at Weinberger's) invites everyone to call at the Central Drug Store, Cor. Main and 4th Sts., and let him explain all about it. Come in today—there is no charge.—Adv.

King of French Jailbreakers In Prison Cell Again

PARIS—(INS)—Armand Jean Spilers, king of French jail-breakers and notorious for having escaped from Devil's Island, the French penal colony, is back in jail again, this time Sante prison here.

To return him to Sante, from which he recently escaped, the French police took no chances. Handcuffing Spilers, with two separate pairs of the bracelets, and chaining him to two husky gendarmes, the police carted him back to prison in a specially constructed van.

Spilers does not come by his reputation as king of jailbreakers without cause. Besides escaping from Devil's Island, he has succeeded in breaking out of four prisons in France and five in South America.

HURT IN CRASH

Columbus Women in Galion Hospital After Mishap.

GALION—Mrs. Floyd Thoman of Columbus was admitted to Good Samaritan hospital early Sunday morning as the result of an accident on Charles street.

Mrs. Thoman was in a car driven by her husband. It crashed into the rear of a car occupied by Marion Stinehelfer and George Moody, local police captain. Stinehelfer's car had stalled along the side of the road without lights, and Captain Mood was helping him to get it out of the way of traffic. Patrolman Guy Lowe was along the road signalling traffic, but failed to stop Thoman. Thoman stated to police that he did not see Lowe.

Mrs. Thoman is suffering from a broken jaw and other injuries. Her husband received a cut on his forehead. Stinehelfer's shoulder was injured, and Captain Moody suffered a side injury.

Police were making further investigations of the accident today.

Deputies in the treasurer's office described collection so far as "about average." Most of the personal tax is paid by Mansfield industries.

Personal levies are payable without penalty until Dec. 10. The total half-year charge for the county is $188 964

DISTRICT SEEKS INCORPORATION

150 in South Boulevards Sign Petitions Asking County to Okay Village Plan.

The South Boulevards Property Holders association prepared today to submit four petitions to county commissioners asking incorporation of the suburban district as a village.

R K Clark, treasurer of the association, said the petitions contained 150 names, while only 30 signatures are needed.

The petitions ask that the residential section of about 300 population be incorporated as the village of South Boulevards to enable the property holders' association to seek a bond issue for a sewage system.

Attempts to have the district annexed to Mansfield have failed, Clark said. South Boulevards is south of Mansfield, between Main street and Lexington avenue roads.

If commissioners approve the petitions and there are no objections to the incorporation, certification of the incorporation will be filed with the county auditor and the secretary of state.

ROMANCE, INC. + + +

By OREN ARNOLD

(Copyright, 1938)

READ THIS FIRST:

Sarah Sue Davis, attractive young widow, with the aid of her mother-in-law, rents a cottage near the campus of Rice Institute, in Texas, in preparation for the launching of a unique business venture. Bob Towne, football end and campus hero, and some of the other students, are arrested by the new sign in front of the Davis cottage announcing a "Council in Romance."

CHAPTER 3.

Sara Sue Davis, the girl, and Sara Sue Davis, Inc., were individually and jointly as nervous as possible. She peeked every few seconds through her front curtains to see the group of Rice boys and co-eds staring at her sign and cottage, reading the student newspaper, laughing and speculating as to her advertised "Counsel in Romance."

She wanted to go hide in the attic and bite her finger nails, she told herself. But she was a mature widow of 23, and a business woman. True, some of those collegians were as old as she, especially the seniors, but she had to act older and "go out after business." These were recession times, her banker had told her; she must not sit down and idly wait for customers, she must be aggressive.

Sara Sue Davis, personally and incorporated, therefore fluffed up her curls—Sara Sue's curls really were almost red—and hastily added a touch more of rouge. She smiled at herself in the entrance hall mirror, a practice corporate smile, then instantly changed into what she fancied was severe business-like manner. She cleared her throat, opened her front door and stepped determinedly out.

"Good afternoon!" she greeted the crowd of students.

A chorus of hellos and how-are-you's answered.

"Are you—can't you—won't you come in? Mother's—mother's inside. And—" It was a very lame invitation. The prim speech she had imagined, now refused to jell.

A big tall collegian was first to answer. A handsome youth, with black hair, and a contagious smile. His leadership seemed to be unconscious, habitual. He stared hard at Sara Sue as he spoke.

"Thanks, Thanks, we'd like to," said Bob Towne. "We were just reading the sign. And the Thresher ad. We'd like to meet her, I'm sure."

That's all that was needed. The sign itself said "Come In", And the pretty girl had said it. Curiosity already was at high pitch. The group swarmed into the cottage quietly, speaking in interested undertones.

"How do you do—all of you?" Mother Davis' manner was almost benign. Past middle age, this mellowed soul could show calm and genuine friendliness.

Again came a chorus of polite answers.

* * *

Sara Sue had followed them in, of course, and felt now that she simply must take charge, despite her stage fright. She swallowed hard, blushed and pitched in.

"I want to welcome you again," she began. "Won't you find seats? Anywhere. I have put in a great many chairs, and a lot of extra cushions. Just sit on the floor if the chairs run out

"Now, perhaps I'd better offer to answer any questions. You read the Thresher announcement. Does anyone—anyone want to inquire further about the plan?"

"Is it really a date bureau?"

"Can we have parties here?"

"Can you find me a sweetheart?"

The questions came in a flood, some serious, many in humorous vein. Sara Sue bit her lip, and kept smiling. Bob Towne was staring at her still, and she noticed that. She didn't mind, but his gaze was so rapt—

"Maybe I'd better tell you all about it," Sara Sue resumed.

"No, I'm not going to run an escort bureau, or a gigolo service, or anything like that. But I have planned—"

"Pardon me," Bob Towne broke in, "but you say 'I'. Will you be one of the assistants or something?"

"No. I'm—I'm the corporation. I am Sara Sue Davis. OH, I am so sorry I overlooked introductions Please forgive me. Will—will each one of you tell your name now? I—I—"

"YOU'RE Miss Davis?" Bob Towne jabbed his question at her.

Mrs. Davis. And this is my mother-in-law, Mrs. Davis also."

"Oh," murmured Bob. "You're married. Married."

"I was. Mr. Davis — passed away. Four years ago. He was a Rice student, too. But am I not to hear your names." She smiled engagingly at them.

Something very positive was happening to young Bob Towne while introductions were under way. First a letdown, then a revival of spirit. A revival when he learned that this utterly fascinating girl was a widow.

The dress she wore was blue, he noted. Blue with some white doodads on it. Beautiful. Her hair was nestly. He'd bet it was soft, and pleasant to touch. But most striking of all were her cheeks.

* * *

Cheeks are seldon given their due, in appraisal of feminine beauty. Poets sing of eyes and lips. Artists create busts and limbs. But cheeks—Mrs. Davis' cheeks were like—like peaches. No! That sounded like Peaches Pomeroy, and hers were hollow. Sara Sue's were plump, rounded, like apples in shape and tint. No, Bob told himself, that sounded silly. Why think of fruit? They were—gee!

His racing thoughts were interrupted by her speech again.

"—the result of careful investigation, which revealed a definite need for a plan of this sort." She was going well now, sure of herself. "I want my cottage to be an intimate social home for students away from their own homes. I know you have some fine characters. I know you want to build those characters, and I know you will be having many thoughts about—love.

"I believe in love. I—"

"Me, too!" That was Bob Towne's voice. Laughter trailed him.

But Sara Sue squelched him with a look. "—I am not joking, Mr. Towne. I mean it! I believe in love. I believe it is the most important thing in the world. I believe it is the key to all happiness. It is much more important than—than football. Or even than classroom studies. And colleges pay too little attention to it. I mean, they don't offer guidance and help in bringing young people of the right sort together, under favorable circumstances. They don't enable boys and girls to meet the kind of mates they could be happy with.

"Now I am not able to solve all the problems of young lovers, surely. But I can be a confidante. I can keep secrets," she paused to smile at them, sweetly. "I really can, and I will. I expect I shall be of most value to co-eds, rather than to boys, for I can talk girl talk with them and help them with their personal problems. But I will try to help the boys all I can, too. I am mature, and—and experienced."

* * *

Mother Davis quietly smiled at this, but said nothing.

"I want you all to make this cottage a loafing place. We have a piano. And a radio and phonograph. This is a big living room, where we—where you could dance. You can arrange parties, even using my kitchen for refreshments. I can act as chaperone when needed. Our garden is lovely, too. I will take you out there presently. And you can come to me privately with any personal problem you may have. I'll give the very best advice I can.

"But you will have to pay just a little for all this. The cost will be $3 a month each. For memberships. No more. I want only 100 members. Out of 1,400 Rice students I think I can get 100, and—"

"Goodness, Mrs. Davis, you'll get a thousand."

The interruption came enthusiastically from a co-ed. But Bob Town was nodding. This aggressive fellow stepped forward now, holding out a $10 and a $5 bill.

"Sign me up at once, please, Mrs. Sara Sue," he boomed. "I'm paying five months in advance."

That flustered Sara Sue again. She hadn't expected such prompt action. But she was delighted.

* * *

The crowd began to drift over the cottage and garden, ohing and ahing in delight at the bright cheeriness of all the rooms, pausing to poke fun at grinning Cleopatra Jones, colored qreen of the kitchen. Sara Sue had fluttered away to her tiny private office, where she had receipt blanks in her mahogany desk. She was thrilled pink. Her business was actually beginning, on the first day of school! She invited Mr. Towne in, showed him a chair, then wrote out the receipt for him.

"Thank you very much,' ' she said, professionally, handing him the slip of paper.

"Surely. And—can the service start immediately?"

She stared blankly at him, looking up a little, for Sara Sue was just five feet three. "You mean—?"

"I mean, please Sara Sue, that I think your plan is wonderful. I want your expert counsel at once. I want—I want to take you to the theater tonight! May I?"

He leaned forward eagerly.

YOUR WILL-POWER ...THE MODERN HAZARD TO YOUR NERVES

BEAGLE HOUND

English fox-hound in miniature. Solid and big for his inches, true beagle has the long-wearing look of the hound that can last in the chase. One of the oldest breeds in history—close to the original breed of hounds. U. S. standards specify 15 inches maximum height—any true hound color acceptable.

THE frazzling pace of these fast-moving times doesn't mean a thing in the life of the dog. Although his complex, high-keyed nervous system closely resembles our own, when the dog feels his nerves tire he settles down—relaxes—as the beagle hound above is doing. That is instinctive with the dog. We are not so likely to break nerve tension before it gets our nerves upset. Ambition and determination push us on and on . . . past the warning stage of nerve strain. Will-power silences the instinct to pause and rest.

And yet jittery, ragged nerves are a distinct handicap. Don't let your nerves get that way. Learn to ease the strain occasionally. Let up—light up a Camel! It's such a pleasant way to rest your nerves—a brief recess, mellow with the pleasure of Camel's mildness and ripe, rich taste. Yes, no wonder smokers say Camel's costlier tobaccos are so soothing to the nerves.

MONDAY, NOVEMBER 21, 1938.

Presence of a chip on the shoulder retards peaceful settlement of differences.

That Munich victory for Hitler came too easy, and now the Nazis are running amuck.

According to Pearl Buck, winner of the Nobel prize for literature, "You get nothing if you wait for a mood"—which is a fine thing to discover early in life.

Not Hostile Toward Union Labor.

DISCUSSING the defeat of Governor Murphy for re-election in Michigan, the Philadelphia Bulletin commented that he was "defeated on his record of being too pro-labor."

The Detroit News takes issue with this conclusion and says: "What defeated the governor was, as we all know, his attitude and action respecting the sit-downs and the Lansing 'holiday,' which the people regarded as 'too pro-labor-lawlessness'."

"The people of Michigan are not at all hostile toward union labor as such," continues the News editorial, going on to explain: "One wing of the Michigan labor movement now is blaming Murphy's defeat, quite rightly, on those of its brother unionists who promoted the sit-downs."

Public attitude in Michigan is apparently not unlike that in Ohio, where there is a friendly and sympathetic attitude toward all proper steps intended to advance the cause of labor, coupled, however, with determination that acts of lawlessness must not be condoned and that seizure or destruction of property shall not be permitted.

It is unfortunate for the cause of organized labor that its legitimate purposes and high ideals are sometimes stigmatized by lawless conduct on the part of even small groups of irresponsible radicals who become attached to the movement, to the detriment of the large majority of workers who are consistently well behaved citizens.

The public interest, after all, must be seriously considered in any controversies arising between employers and employes, and it is poor judgment on the part of labor leaders to adopt policies or permit conduct that might tend to alienate the spirit of friendliness which a considerable majority of people have had in furthering the welfare of workers.

Elyria's Work Relief Program.

ELYRIA officials are experimenting with the idea of requiring employables on relief rolls to "work out" relief orders, instead of being given money or supplies without doing any work.

One of the chief objections heard regarding methods of handling relief funds during the past five years has been the encouragement given to idleness on the part of some of the beneficiaries, with inclination on the part of some persons to stay "on relief" in preference to taking employment when available.

Results in Elyria have been so satisfactory, according to reports, that other Lorain county cities and towns are preparing work relief programs under a new Ohio law which provides that public work can be done in this way.

In Elyria there was need for common labor to do work that had been neglected on account of shortage of funds and it was found that a large percentage of those on relief rolls were willing and able to work in exchange for relief.

The few who refused to work were cut off of relief lists, with these result, according to the county relief director, that "it didn't take them long to come to the conclusion that work was better than hunger."

There is public responsibility to supply relief to persons who are in physical or mental condition that makes it impossible for them to do any kind of work. It is quite generally agreed, also, that relief clients who are able to work should be required to do so in exchange for any money or supplies they receive from public or private sources.

Air-Conditioned Circus.

THE CIRCUS, thought last season to have expired forever, is very much alive. Its officials are making the usual winter announcements of bigger and better things next summer. The labor troubles that caused premature folding of the big top some months ago have been satisfactorily ended. The circus fans' association which was organized to save the show can now disband or, if its members choose, go on working for the prevention of future alarms and closings.

The public should be warned, however, that the circus may be strangely altered. Announcement is made of an "air-conditioned and color-conscious" affair, "geared to swing time," in which everything will harmonize, and even the center poles will be disguised by "lighting tricks never used before."

Junior may like all this, but grandad is apt to feel bewildered and disgruntled. Imagine a circus in which there is harmony instead of a riot of color! Imagine a circus in which the rich aroma compounded of popcorn, peanuts, tanbark, grease paint and animals is all swept away by blasts of pure ozone! Imagination balks at this point.

May Unify Continents.

THERE is more interest throughout this hemisphere in the conference of American nations at Lima, Peru, next month, than there has ever before been in such a gathering. People of all our republics, whatever may be the actual degree of democracy represented by their present regimes, believe in liberty and want to keep this New World free from the tyrannies and encroachments of the Old World. The meeting of minds in that mountain capital of the ancient Incas should result in greater unity for our two continents and a better understanding of what our remoteness from Europe and Asia means to us all.

In any such assemblage Uncle Sam, as big brother of the rest, naturally sits at the head of the table—not literally, but by influence, arising from the economic and military power he represents. It is not a cause for arrogance but a challenge to responsibility. What is said and done at Lima may affect the destinies of this hemisphere for a hundred years.

For the enlightenment of those who have nothing else to worry about, it may be mentioned that the planet Mars is to make unusual close approach to the earth next year, and plans for an invasion may even now be under way.

Watching Trends

—By PRESTON GROVER

WASHINGTON—Something has happened these past few days that a great many people didn't believe could happen. A man has been peacefully chosen to succeed a dictator.

That is the story of the death of President Kemal Ataturk of Turkey and the selection of his right hand man, Gen. Ismet Inonu.

Turkey is so far away from the United States that the significance of this procedure was largely lost. But there are parallel situations closer at hand. Upon these there has been speculation—strictly unofficial. Officially there can be no speculation on what will happen when a dictator comes to the end of his road.

The speculation has tended all in one direction. What will happen when a successor must be found to replace say, Stalin, Mussolini or Hitler? Hitler is younger but Mussolini and Stalin are up in their fifties, although Mussolini tries to get his people and himself to forget that. Mussolini has been a dictator as long as Kemal. His official life has been almost as rugged and active as Kemal's. His private life has been far more circumspect and less of a drain on his physique.

* * *

Will Death Mean End?

PEOPLE want to know whether they must continue to live with dictatorships only through the life of one man, or will the breed carry on.

Now comes an example of a dictator being peacefully replaced with prospects that his program will continue.

True, there are vast differences in the nature of the dictatorships, as seen by observers here. Kemal Ataturk nevertheless was a dictator in his own sphere. He used the iron hand where necessary. A large difference between his situation and that of other dictators is that the type of reforms he was called upon to make met the approval of the outside world almost immediately.

He divorced the state from the Mohammedan church. He installed the English-type alphabet to replace wiggle-worm arabic characters so difficult to teach. He started public schools, popularized western dress to replace fez and oriental drapery (maybe that was an improvement), removed the scarf from women's faces and abolished harems.

* * *

Bold as Hitler.

HIS moves, for a little country, were as bold as Hitler's for a bigger country. He tossed aside Italian, French and Greek claims to former Turkish territory, shot a Greek army into the sea at Smyrna and refortified the Dardanelles in direct violation of allied peace provisions.

Doubtless in a popular election he would have been elected but he provided that his successor should be chosen by a sort of closed corporation, the national parliament, whose existence so long had depended upon his good will.

His associates insist he was not a dictator in the German-Italian sense. Said one of them:

"He followed the constitution strictly. No action was taken before he consulted his advisers. Every decree was passed upon by parliament." Then, it was added naively: "It is good to know that parliament approved all his decrees, for his plans were so wise."

TORTOISE AND THE "HERR"—1938

Better Balanced Advisers Needed

—By CHARLES P. STEWART

WASHINGTON, D. C.—"If you were running the New Deal and had the necessary authority or influence, what, in the light of the last election, would you do next?" I put this question to a friend of mine, a friend who occupies an important government post, but he probably wouldn't continue to occupy it much longer if I named him. Anyway, he understands the New Deal thoroughly, and, being an excellent liberal, is in sympathy with it in all its main essentials. "Well," he said, "I immediately would start a genuine, searching investigation of relief. I'd make it clear that I didn't care who might be hit. There undoubtedly is a widespread impression that our relief methods (not relief itself but its administration) have created a national Tammany. I don't say it's true, but I myself suspect it. I'd prove that this suspicion is unfounded, and I'd do it conclusively. Or else I'd prove that it is well founded, and let the suspects take the consequences.

"Next, our new labor laws have worked unsatisfactorily. Employers believed that they're discriminated against. I'm for compulsory collective bargaining all right, but I think maybe the workers should be required to incorporate, accepting a somewhat larger share of responsibility in return for larger rewards. And there should be better provision for mediation in capital-labor disputes. I don't mean compulsory arbitration. But the machinery for amicable adjustments should be set up. It's been done in the railroads' case, and has worked admirably, as the recent rail-wage argument's outcome has demonstrated. It should be generally applied, in labor's own interest."

Agriculture's Problem.

"The agricultural situation," my friend proceeded, "is a scandal.

"Let me illustrate.

"The other day a chap I know asked me to join him in the purchase of a farm near Washington. 'But,' I replied, 'I'm no farmer.' 'Neither am I,' he assured me. 'We don't need to be.'

"Then he explained. 'This place,' he said, 'can be had very reasonably.' We'll plant it to bluegrass—soil conservation stuff. For conserving our soil we'll get $14 per acre from the government. In two years we'll have an area of fine sod. Such sod, in this part of the country, is salable at hard onto $100 per acre. There's a machine now for scooping it up and rolling it, and it's in brisk demand. Our governmental $14 per acre for two years will about half pay for the land, then we'll get $100 per acre for the sod, and can sell the farm at a net profit—or plant more bluegrass, and go on collecting $14 per acre for the bluegrass.'

"I don't contend," my friend added, "that sod's worth $100 per acre everywhere, but it is in this vicinity. I've no doubt that such systems, more or less modified as to local conditions, are applicable elsewhere."

Perhaps these are a few questions for Agriculture Secretary Wallace to reply to.

"And social security?" my friend supplemented. "The government collects the money, chucks it into the cash drawer, and then Treasury Secretary Morgenthau pays it out to meet current expenses, leaving nothing but I. O. U.'s in place of it. When the time comes to pay the pensions, what'll the cash drawer look like.

"That," he concluded, "was what the public was thinking of, rather incoherently, at the last election."

There Are Other Issues.

And there are other issues.

"Sure," agreed my friend, "there are plenty others.

"It's trite to allege that the New Deal's objectives are good, but that its methods are awful. It's a fact, nevertheless."

Can President Roosevelt correct such errors in his two years yet to go?

"There," he said, "you've got me.

"One thing—he needs older advisers.

"These young Brain Trusters are products of the hideous post-war mess. They've got no roots in rationality."

Annual Lollipop Award.

Orson Welles, who panicked America recently with his monsters of Mars program, was awarded the P. T Barnum memorial award, a lollipop, annually given by Brown University at Providence, R. I., to "that individual who best plays the American public for the suckers they really are."

An editorial in the Brown Daily Herald, the undergraduate newspaper, announcing the award, exclaimed that "the American public has done it again! P. T. Barnum is a master of understatement."

"Orson Welles, whose claim to fame used to be that he threw a new light on Shakespeare's plays, has left this earth for wider spaces," the editorial continued.

"He landed his army of Martians on the Jersey mud flats and frightened an entire nation out of a night's sleep."—New York Sun.

Health Advice

What the Autonomic Nerves Do.

—By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

THE autonomic or involuntary nervous system is hardly at all connected with the voluntary nervous system, which receives impressions — through the eyes, ears and skin—from the external world and translates these into muscular movements and actions and thought. The autonomic nervous system runs the humbler business of the body and does it very effectively.

Think of all the functions it controls:

The response of the pupil of the eye to light, darkness and distance. You never think about this; it is all accomplished for you.

The secretion of the salivary glands—in fact, of nearly all the glands in the body. There is a nerve going to the salivary glands, the chorda tympam, which, if it is stimulated, produces an abundance of clear, watery, salivary secretion.

Blood Vessels.

The blood vessels and sweat glands all over the body. The latter dilate and bring more blood to the part, or contract, as necessity arises. (One of the most remarkable regulatory mechanisms of the body is the response to cold. The skin of the surface of the body pales because the blood vessels contract and leave it; this prevents too much chilling of the blood. Then we have goose flesh, which is simply an automatic contraction of the little muscles that raise the hairs. In fur-bearing animals this creates a thicker layer of air surrounding the skin; in humans it does not make so much difference because we haven't enough hair. Then the muscles begin to tremble to create more internal heat. All this is involuntary and under automatic control.)

The movement of the heart. One nerve, the vagus, slows the heart; another, the sympathetic, makes it rapid. Both can be influenced by medicines.

The movements of the stomach and the intestines, and the secretion of the digestive glands.

The lower centers control the bladder and lower bowel.

Not Flighty.

This widespread control places a great deal of responsibility on the autonomic nervous system. Fortunately, it is not flighty nor as subject to influences and changes as the higher nervous centers in the brain.

All of this control is double. In other words, each of these involuntary organs gets two sets of nerves. The pupil gets one set that dilates, one set that contracts it. The heart has one set slows it. So a perfect balance is that hastens it and one set that maintained in the impulses that go out over these networks.

What controls them? What regulates them? They regulate our lower mundane lives, but what regulates them? The questions are by no means easy to answer in the present state of our knowledge, but upon them may depend much of our destiny.

For one thing, the organs are not quite so dependent on the autonomic nerves as perhaps has been suggested above. The heart beats even when entirely cut off from its nervous control. And it beats in response to chemical stimuli—change in oxygen supply, in the nature of the chemical solutions in the blood running through it.

Then, the autonomic nervous system is not so entirely cut off from the central nervous system as I have indicated. The central nervous system responds to an external impulse. Skin touches hot stove, muscle pulls away. Well, on the lower level, the salivary glands secrete when an appetizing odor is smelled.

But, mainly, they respond to internal chemical stimulation. And this is important for treatment and health.

A Farmer's Diary

Second Honeymoon.

—By CALVIN A. BYERS

IT WAS their second honeymoon, they said, when they drove up to our house in the new car, with a Washington license.

He was grayer than when we saw him last, with lines in his face that had come from living, but he had more poise and sureness, and a well-cared-for, contented look. She was as trim and tailormade as ever, in a simple frock and a neat, close hat. Their camaraderie impressed us. They were having a whale of a good time.

"It's almost more fun than the first honeymoon," she remarked. "Here are the children's pictures. We wanted a real vacation, so they stayed with grandmother." She showed snapshots of the chubby youngsters, a boy and a girl.

"We're getting a free trip, you see," he said.

"How's that?" we asked.

"Well, we've needed a new car, and the freight on one from Detroit to Bellingham is quite a lot. So we bought our car in Bellingham—and turned the old one in—then came on the train to Detroit to drive it home. The auto company's cab met us at the station and took us to the factory for lunch and a sightseeing trip. When we were ready, they ran out our new car, and we got in. Can you beat that?"

We couldn't. We shared their animation, and walked around the car, admiringly, all talking at once.

They stayed just a few minutes. Then it wouldn't start. He tried several times.

"Flooded! Now what's the rule for that?"

Whimsically, he produced from somewhere a blue book of instructions, made an adjustment or two, and the engine purred.

They drove away down our long lane, toward the West. Watching them go, we shared the sweep of their adventure—their pride in a fine new car, after years of saving; their joy at their thrifty trip; the happiness of seeing old and distant friends; the anticipation of the journey back, to where, beyond the distant mountains, two pairs of warm young arms would make homecoming complete.

Listen, World!

Let's Go Shopping for America.

—By ELSIE ROBINSON

DEAR EM AND AL—

Well, at last I'm getting the early bulge on this Yuletide shopping business. First time in nearly half a century—oughtta be some kind of a record! What' more, I'm starting right. Bought a new bath robe for Uncle Sam today . . . and the slickest kitchen gadget for Mrs. U. S. A. Haven't yet decided about Miss America, but maybe one of those trick bed-jackets . . .

Have I gone crazy? No, I haven't. Nor am I setting up a rival shopping section. But something's happened to me, Em. Go on kid if you want, both of you. But there's something lying on my heart . . . something I feel I ought to do . . . feel we all ought to do. Well, getting right down to brass tacks, here it is . . . and I dare you to laugh it off! I've a hunch that it's up to us all this year to—

GO SHOPPING FOR AMERICA!

Perhaps you never thought of putting America on your Christmas list, Em and Al. Neither did I. Fact is, I always figured I faced enough grief, just gifting my Personal Outfit, without playing Santy to 3,000 miles of miscellaneous What-have-you's. You know, the annual grouch we all get, 'round about now. And I'd probably have gone on with my grouch, if something queer hadn't happened. Listen—

It was Monday. You know how busy Mondays are. Well, I was tearing along, half 'n hour late for an appointment, and cussing my luck, when I ran—bam!—into a line of W. P. A. workers, jamming the sidewalk. Nothing new about Relief Lines — we've seen them since '33. Only difference was, this bunch seemed no end happier and healthier than the poor wretches we watched when the depression started. Looked as if their self-respect was back on the job. Busy as I was, I noticed that fact—gotta kick out of it.

Then suddenly it hit me! As if a light had been lit somewhere, I saw what that line really meant. Not just a string of faces . . . but what lay behind those faces. The desperate need and the Big Fight that has kept them from going under. The Big Fight in which we've all joined side by side. Government and State . . . Labor and Industry . . . all struggling together, somehow, toward that dream of Freedom and Equality and Brotherly Love which made America.

WITH YOU AND I, AND OUR NICKELS AND DIMES, KEEPING THE WHOLE SHOW GOING!

For get that straight, Al and Em. No matter how many heroes died in the past . . . no matter how many wise men labor in the present . . . America would be licked if the common, cash-'n'-carry customers, like you and me, didn't come across!

YOU AND I KEEP EVERYTHING GOING . . . Just like a star, the wonder of that thought lit everything up! There I'd been, a second before, grouching about my Christmas shopping . . . wondering who I could cut off . . . where I could whittle down.

And now, facing that line of rescued faces, I saw it all in reverse. Saw that it's spending, not saving, that has always made America. Saw that giving, not getting, is the meaning of Christmas, too!

A HELPLESS BABE IN A MANGER . . . A HELPLESS MAN ON RELIEF . . . OR A BADLY BURDENED NATION STRIVING TO WIN ITS WAY BACK FROM A GRIM AND GREAT CRUSADE . . . perhaps they're not so far apart, after all —for love is love . . . and service is service . . . whether you give it over a department store counter . . . or at Valley Forge . . . or Bethlehem—and the anxious woman who gives her hard-earned dollars to help her country keep faith may be blessed, in the eyes of God, as kings with frankincense and myrrh!

So, I'm making this a different Christmas, Em and Al. Not that I'm thinking of sprouting any wings . . . and maybe I'll yell my head off over the bills, come January, as I've always done. But somehow I've a hunch they'll seem different — not just some more money I've thrown away . . . BUT LIKE LENDING A HAND TO A PAL!

S'long, kids! Think it over!

Elsie.

Man About Manhattan

—By GEORGE TUCKER

NEW YORK — To Mary With Love: People speak of "a flood of memories." I know what that means now. I was standing under the clock in the Biltmore today, which used to be a famous meeting place in the old days, and it all came back. It seemed for a moment as if it were exactly as it had been on that dim Saturday of the middle 1920's, when college boys wore coonskin coats, and everybody was drinking bathtub gin, and girls from everywhere came into New York on Saturday afternoons for the tea dansants.

The same clock was there and the same walls. But the faces were different. I remember on that day that everybody was speaking of Red Grange, and Coolidge was president, and the orchestra kept coming back to "Tea For Two," which was new, and Dartmouth was still undefeated, and it was November.

* * *

I HAD come there from the Fraternity clubs at 38th and Madison, where I was spending the night, and I couldn't get over the excitement of meeting F. Scott Fitzgerald, who had been in the lobby when I registered. I had a bottle of gin wrapped up in a newspaper and as I placed it on the desk a young man with a gay sort of what-the-hell manner came in. He spoke to everybody and pretty soon he came over and picked up the bottle that was heavily wrapped in a copy of the New York Times. "Hmmmm," he said, sniffing it, "gin." And then he put it down and walked away, and for a moment I thought he was a detective and that he was going to arrest me for breaking the law.

But when he was gone I asked the clerk, "Who was that?" And he told me, "F. Scott Fitzgerald." And I was pretty excited, because everybody had read "Tales of the Jazz Age," just as everybody was reading "The Green Hat" and talking about Michael Arlen.

* * *

AND then I went over to the Biltmore and stood under the clock because that was where I was to meet Jack McQuade, my roommate in school, and presently he came in like a great bear in his coonskin coat and his red knit tie and his Rosenberg suit.

"Well," he said, "this is the nuts, eh? I told you you'd like New York," and then we went in and sat at a table with about 200 other people and danced with a lot of girls he knew, girls from Smith and from Wellesley and other schools too. And I met Florence Rice there and she danced with me, and ever after that when I'd see her picture in the papers —in Hollywood, in Miami, in New York—I'd say to myself, "I remember you. I danced with you at the Biltmore one Saturday afternoon in November. You were Grantland Rice's daughter then, but now you're an actress and everybody knows you."

It's fun to think of old times sometimes — sometimes when you turn a corner, or happen by chance to pause under a clock. There are a lot of corners in New York, and a lot of clocks. But you shouldn't pause under too many of them. It sort of gets you down.

Power, unless managed with gentleness and discretion, does but make a man the more hated; no intervals of good humor, no starts of bounty, will atone for tyranny and oppression.—Jeremy Collier.

Variety of Fillings For Sandwiches

By PAULINE SCHOFIELD
Home Service Department of the Ohio Fuel Gas Company.

It's hard to believe that the origin of our limitless variety of big and little sandwiches was so casual. The Earl of Sandwich, a noble game-loving Englishman who would rather play than eat is credited with asking for a "couple pieces of bread and a chunk of meat" which he ate in his hand rather than stop his game of chess He dubbed it a "Sandwich." The idea "caught on" and grew and grew until today we call everything with a bread and filling base, a sandwich.

Everyone likes [illegible] fillings best and there are endless possibilities in this line. Some of the more popular fillings using ham, bacon, cheese, and eggs are suggested for hearty sandwiches.

Toasted Cheese and Bacon.

Toast one side of square bread. Spread untoasted side with butter then with 1 cup grated American cheese mixed with mayonnaise, ½ teaspoon dry mustard and 1 teaspoon worcestershire sauce. Place under broiler until cheese melts. Serve hot with 2 strips of crisp bacon on top. Serve with dill pickles.

Glorified Hamburgers.

Cut round buns in half, butter and toast. Mix ¾ lb. ground beef chuck, ¼ lb. lean pork, 2 teaspoons salt, ¼ teaspoon pepper, 1½ tablespoons fine onion, ½ cup milk and cup fine bread crumbs. Shape lightly into flat patties and pan fry to golden brown. Place between halves of toasted buns with a ring of onion and a spoonful of pickle relish.

Picnic Red-Hots.

Partly split frankfurters and spread with prepared mustard. Wrap with a strip of bacon and skewer in palce with a toothpick Broil on sticks or over an open grill and serve in long buns.

Hot Fried Sandwiches.

Spread regular sandwiches with ham or chicken salad spread. Put together and dip whole sandwiches in ¾ cup milk mixed with 1 beaten egg. Fry to golden brown in butter. Top with slice of tomato or grilled pineapple

Denver Sandwich.

Fry 1 tablespoon chopped onion in 1 tablespoon butter 'till clear Pour in 1 beaten egg mixed with 2 tablespoons chopped cooked ham. Let brown with onion and butter like large pancake. Serve between toast.

Hunt Club Sandwich.

Roll biscuit dough very thin Dot surface with 4 tbsp. butter. Fold so as to make 3 layers. Turn half way around Roll out ½ the dough ⅛ inch thick to cover bottom of oblong pan about 12 by 9 inches Spread thickly with chicken and ham filling. Cover with remaining dough, rolled thin. Cut through in desired shapes, such as squares, diamonds, etc, but leave in place Bake 15 minutes in a hot oven (450 degrees). Filling: To 1½ cups cooked chicken (cut up and flaked) and ¾ cup cooked ham (cut in ½ inch pieces), add 4 tbsp. top milk, 3 beaten egg yolks and 2 hard cooked eggs, chopped. Season with salt and pepper.

Toasted Sandwiches.

Cut the bread not more than ¼ inch thick. Spread with soft butter. Put a slice of cheese slice of ham, peanut butter, or a mixture of chopped left-over meat mixed with minced celery, onion, cucumber and mayonnaise, on one slice Cover with the other slice of bread and place the sandwiches on the top section in the broiler pan Put the pan in the heated broiler compartment and toast until the outside of both pieces of bread are delicately browned. Remove from the broiler and serve while still warm.

Cheese Fillings.

Roquefort cheese spread on whole wheat bread with lettuce leaf.

American cheese ground with peanuts and softened with mayonnaise.

Egg Fillings.

Egg salad: Hard cooked eggs with chopped onion, pickle, celery and mustard and mayonnaise.

Peanut Butter Fillings.

Peanut butter mixed with mayonnaise and crisp bits of bacon on white bread

Peanut butter mixed with green pickle relish on whole wheat bread.

Appeals to Youngsters

TOAST ANIMALS—Cut animal shapes out of bread with animal cookie cutters. Spread with butter and toast a light golden brown under the broiler. Serve these to the children to eat with their soup. (Incidentally, small thin squares of bread, buttered and then toasted, are elegant for grown-ups to eat with soup. It's buttering the bread before toasting that gives the flavor!)

Easy Meal For Mother's Day Out

By RUTH CHAMBERS
Demonstrator and Lecturer for The News-Journal Cooking School.

When mother takes a holiday, she sometimes leaves behind a rather bewildered family to eat a hasty cold or badly prepared meal. The thought of their discomfort may spoil her own pleasure in whatever she is doing. Sometimes she stays home from events she would otherwise enjoy because it seems so hard to leave the family.

It is a wise homemaker who so arranges things that she has a little freedom for pleasure or duties outside her home. A shopping trip which takes all day, dinner with friends or business or family matters which should be attended to, all these should be planned for so that the family knows how to "carry on" if she is away at meal time

These occasions may be given a silver lining of fun and accomplishment if mother arranges so that a really appetizing meal can be quickly and easily prepared by inexperienced hands. Small daughter may be quite proud of her skill, if things are planned for her. Even father and the boys may take an interest in their culinary accomplishments if mother makes things easy and interesting for them

Plan Meal.

One good way to do this is for mother to arrange an entire meal and do some of the preliminary work

A delicious and substantial meal which anyone would be proud to serve and which even a very young substitute cook can manage is outlined here. Sausage jumbles and creamed potatoes form the main dish. The sausage jumbles can be fixed ahead of time and left in the refrigerator, ready to be put into the oven. The cream sauce for the potatoes can be cooked, to be reheated in a double boiler.

For dessert, cooked fruit and cookies are at hand. A lettuce salad with French dressing will complete the feast.

Various casserole dishes fit neatly into these menus for dinners which mother can leave to be heated and served by her young "understudy". Potatoes can be put in the oven to be baked while the meat and vegetables are cooking in the casserole.

Stew Can Be Reheated.

A stew may be prepared early in the day and left to be reheated. This will only enhance its good flavor.

Sausage jumbles are a novel dish which may be made ready for baking and stored in the refrigerator until the appointed time for baking.

Sausage Jumbles.

1½ pounds fresh pork sausage
2 large onions.
3 tomatoes
12 bacon slices

Form the meat into patties 1 inch thick. Brown and place a thin slice of onion and a slice of tomato ¾ inch thick on each meat patty. Cross 2 strips of bacon and wrap around each pile of tomato, onion and sausage. Fasten bacon strips with toothpick Bake uncovered at 350° F for 45 minutes.

Meat Balls with Spaghetti.

1 pound beef, ground
1 pound pork, ground.
2 slices bread, crumbed
1 small onion, chopped
1 clove garlic
Salt and pepper
Lard for browning
Spaghetti
1 cup tomato puree

Have beef and pork ground. Soak break crumbs in water, then squeeze out. Mix ground meat, bread, onions and a bit of garlic. Season with salt and pepper and shape into balls Brown these in hot lard. Place on top of cooked spaghetti in a casserole. Pour tomato puree over all and cook in a moderate oven until heated through and done.

Baked Dinner.

3 cups sliced raw potatoes
1 can corn
1 can peas
1 can tomatoes
1½ pounds ground beef
½ cup grated onion
Salt and pepper

Arrange a layer of potatoes in a greased baking dish. Season well Add a layer of corn and a layer of peas and top with the meat which has been mixed with the onion and shaped into small patties. Pour the tomatoes over all. Cover and cook in a moderate oven (350° F.) for 1½ hours.

RESEARCH SHIP, NON-MAGNETIC, TO AID SCIENCE

Wood, Bronze, Aluminum Used To Facilitate Studies Of Researchers.

(By United Press)

DARTMOUTH, Eng.—Non-magnetic razor blades will be used by members of the crew when they set sail aboard the two-masted, 770-ton brigantine Research, being built here to continue the international work of investigation performed by the Carnegie, operated by the Carnegie Institution of Washington.

Non-magnetic typewriters, packing case nails, cutlery, tools, tin food containers and cooking utensils will be used, as the principal purpose of the vessel is to aid investigation of the problems of the variation of the earth's magnetic field and atmospheric electricity.

Principal problem of the builders, Philip and Son, Ltd., has been to eliminate magnetic metals from the construction. Much research work had to be done to reduce the amount of steel in the Diesel engines. A bronze alloy was discovered which was suitable, but the crankshaft had to be of steel. However, a special non-magnetic variety was produced for this part of the engine.

Hull of Wood.

The hull of the ship is of teak planks on brass frames. The keel, stem and stern posts also are of teak, with a false keel of Canadian rock elm. Anchors and cables are of aluminum bronze, as is all the wire for the rigging

She will have a full sail area of about 12,000 square feet, and be fitted with a 160 h. p Diesel engine, driving a two-bladed feathering propeller. Her speed will be 6½ knots, with a capacity of 14 tons of Diesel oil, which will give her a range of 3,000 miles.

Over 20 special scientific instruments will be carried. Equipment will include special laboratories for magnetic work, atmospheric-electric research, meteorology and oceanography

There will be four civilian scientists among the ship's complement, as well as six officers and 22 petty officers and men.

Construction of the Research was authorized over three years ago and she is being built at a cost of about $914,000 by the Admiralty, although her functions will be civilized and scientific

Carnegie Gives Aid.

The Carnegie Institution has lent the builders personnel and the specifications of the Carnegie, which was burned at Samoa about nine years ago.

The Research probably will be launched in February, 1939, and be ready for her first cruise in October. She will visit the Carnegie Institution at Washington and, after calls at various South American ports, will start her investigation work in the South Atlantic, between Tristan da Cunha and Capetown

Then the ship will make a complete circuit of the Indian ocean, probably calling at Perth, Cocos Island, Colombo, Seychelles, Mauritius and Durban, where she is scheduled to arrive about November, 1940.

SALES SPURT

Tax Receipts for First Week of Month Pass 1937 Mark.

As a preface to the holiday shopping season, retail busines in Mansfield and Richland county showed a marked upturn during the first week of November, as indicated by greatly increased sales tax receipts

Collections for the county totaled $14,500, an increase of $1,500 over the same week last year The county's receipts for the week more than doubled collections for the preceding week.

Richland county so far this year has produced $339,100 in sales tax revenue, however as compared with $485,500 to the same time in 1937

In the entire state, receipts for the week ending Nov 5 were $1,186,762 an increase of $273 000 more than for the same period last year, State Treasurer Clarence Knisley reported

TWO-PRICE PLAN FOR FOODSTUFF DEEMED SOUND

Economist Says System Would Help Farmer And Those Who Are In Want.

(By United Press)

AMES, Ia.—The proposed two-price system for farm products would mean social benefits to the poor without material disadvantage to the well-to-do, according to Geoffrey Shepherd, Iowa State college agricultural economist.

The plan is being given considerable attention by Secretary of Agriculture Henry A. Wallace and others seeking solution to the farm problem. Under it, surplus commodities would be bought by the government and sold to persons in the lower income brackets at below market prices.

"The farmer probably would receive a slightly larger income directly from sales," Shepherd said. "In addition, if the government bought surplus supplies and sold them for less than it paid, the farmer would gain what the government lost.

Argues on Nutrition.

"From the domestic nutritional point of view, it is wiser to feed our own undernourished people better than to sell surplus stocks at bargain prices to foreign nations—who resent it anyway."

The economist said cost of the system to those in the higher income brackets would depend upon what sort of plan is put into effect.

"It could cost them nothing," he asserted. "For example, whenever a large crop of fruit drives prices down to the point where they do not cover picking, packing and transportation costs, fruit is left to rot on the trees and ground.

"If the government bought these stocks at a little above cost and sold them at low prices to poor consumers, they would not remove any of the supply of the well-to-do. And the prices to the well-to-do would not be affected.

"If, however, part of a large supply already going to market were diverted to poor consumers, that would reduce the supply to the high income group and raise their prices to some extent. But it would only raise prices from surplus levels toward average levels — not thrust them above average."

As a clinching argument in favor of the plan, Shepherd said:

"The cost of food is a smaller percentage of the budget of the rich man than of the poor. And one potato less on a well-loaded table has less effect than one more on an empty one."

The average annual consumption of rice in the United States is five pounds per person, compared with one hundred pounds per person in Puerto Rico.

CROWD ATTENDS RESUMPTION OF GALION CONCERT

Sunday Programs Start 14th Year at High School; Organ Vocal Numbers Given.

GALION—An outstanding program in which a varied array of talent was displayed was presented Sunday afternoon to an appreciative audience that almost filled the Senior High school auditorium for the first of the season's Sunday afternoon concerts which are given each year under the management of Bessie Todd. This marked the beginning of the 14th season of the concerts.

Appropriate was the opening numbers of the program, organ selections played by John Agnew, of Crestline who is well known as Station WHKC, Columbus, organist. The organ is always used in these Sunday afternoon concerts. It was the gift of the late Mrs. E. M. Freese. Mr. Agnew played a group of three numbers to open the program and appeared later for another group of three numbers. His selections were written by many of the greatest composers.

Baritone On Program.

Thomas V. Dickens of Columbus, baritone, who appeared twice on the program with groups of three songs each, responded with a number of enchores. He is a former Yale university athletic coach, and took his teams to the Olympics and on nation-wide tours more than a decade ago. At the present time he is financial director of the Pure Oil company in Ohio.

Mr. Dickens was third and last on the program. Preceding his first appearance the audience listened to a group of four numbers by eight-year-old Theodore Rehl who is Galion's youngest accomplished pianist. His selections were those of Mendelssohn, Raff, Rameau and Carl Phillipp E. Bach. He responded with an enchore.

Following Mr. Dickens, a condensation of Shakespeare's "Julius Caesar" was given by Richard Rose, Galion high school senior who last year received high honors in a state-wide contest of Shakespearean drama at Ohio Wesleyan university.

PENAL EXPERT NOTES BETTER USE OF PAROLE

Many Attacks Made on System Scored as 'Unwarranted' by Wisconsin Man.

(By United Press)

MADISON, Wis.—Attacks on the system of parole in prison administration often are "unwarranted and unjustifiable," according to John J. Hannan, for 13 years president of the board supervising Wisconsin's penal and charitable institutions.

Hannan, a director of the American Prison Association, believes that the parole system, particularly as practiced in Wisconsin, is the "most useful, most humane, and highly social method of placing back in free society those who have served prison terms."

A one-time constant associate and advisor to the late U. S. Sen. Robert M. La Follette, sr., Hannan is not only a vigorous champion of a parole system under strict supervision, but of a program for intelligent treatment and training of prisoners for return to society.

Not Solely to Punish.

"Prisons must do something other than punish and deprive men of liberty," he declared. "If prison programs are to be made solely to care for the 6 to 8 per cent who never come out of those institutions, and ignore the need of the more than 90 per cent who are to return to society, it would be truly a case of the tail wagging the dog."

Much of the criticism of parole, Hannan believes, comes because of "lack of accurate information by those who make it, or is inspired by persons who for undisclosed reasons want to revive the use in penology of the philosophy of an 'eye for an eye.'

"In their ignorance they would make these institutions real breeding places of crime. They would strike from the hands of prison administrators the most effective devices of rehabilitation, such as produce labor and release under supervised parole."

Answer to Attacks.

Hannan's militant defense of parole was inspired, he said, "because of the damage flowing from outrageous, lurid articles and cartoons representing parole boards as tools of unscrupulous politicians, as grafters unlocking prison doors to loose upon good citizens hordes of convicted gunmen, kidnapers, and gangsters of every description."

The veteran prison administrator conceded that criticism of parole may be justified in other states, but asserted that Wisconsin's system has been free from any graft or corruption. Not all parole systems, he said, are administered as are those of Wisconsin, New York, New Jersey, Minnesota and a few other states and the Federal system.

During his 15 years service with the Wisconsin control board, Hannan said no Wisconsin governor ever requested that any prisoner be paroled. He emphasized that parole is not a clemency or legal right, but a treatment technique, a "procedure for the release of a prisoner before the expiration of his sentence." It is granted only to those who are deemed worthy of an opportunity to re-establish themselves in normal life prior to the end of their prison terms."

Medical Science Builds New Ear, Physician Says

PHILADELPHIA—(INS)—Medical science has devised a plastic treatment that will build an entire synthetic human ear out of skin grafts and a section of sheep's windpipe.

A 19-year-old youth born with only one ear and extremely sensitive of his defect is in process of gaining a new member, Dr. Thomas Doyle of Philadelphia, told the International College of Surgeons here. The portion of windpipe was grafted to the youth's head for cartilage, explained Dr. Doyle, and subsequent skin grafts will make a non-hearing twin of his real ear, which, fortunately is extra sensitive.

JUNIOR G-MEN

Neighborhood Boys Shout 'Bang,' Holdup Men Flee.

PHILADELPHIA—(AP)—A gang of neighborhood kids came upon four hoodlums holding up a grocery store.

Thrilled, the youngsters set up a shout of glee.

"Bang! Bang!" they cried. "Holdup! Bang! Bang!"

The startled bandits left the storekeeper—equally surprised—and his money behind as they sped out the door.

BRITAIN COUNTS UP COST OF WAR THAT NEVER GOT STARTED

(By International News Service)

LONDON—(INS)—The war that did not begin cost the British taxpayers approximately a quarter of a billion dollars, it was estimated today.

Principal item of expenditure was sixty million dollars for the navy, which was virtually completely mobilized. Fifteen millions went into war department expenditures, necessitated by troop movements, the partial calling up of territorials, manning of anti-aircraft units.

The comparatively small sum of ten million dollars went in emergency expenditure on the air force.

Air raid precautions took care of a further sixty millions, including twenty-five millions expended in providing forty million gas masks to the civilian population, ten millions for trench digging, and fifteen millions for sandbags. Emergency printing and advertising in the cause of ARP cost two and a half millions.

During the few weeks of the crisis the home department authorized the expenditure of the normal total annual budget for air raid precautions. Much of the money will never be recovered, since it involved the purchase of easily perishable material or the construction of temporary shelters.

Placing of hospital stores on a war-time basis cost the London hospitals alone a million dollars. The national cost was probably fifty millions.

Civic authorities spent approximately 20 millions in supplementing fire-fighting appliances and on other public works of a defensive nature.

Loss of trade to retail distributors is estimated at between 50 and 75 million dollars.

Municipal authorities are demanding that the government shall pay the whole of the emergency expenditure. Many districts, it is urged, will be entirely unable to meet the bill from the rates.
